He maybe your MC if not at least a presenter....tough for him to ding his higher Ed colleagues but he ain't afraid.

He's also recently single and living with his dad so has a lot of time to devote to a project if you can figure out something to pull him into....as an example, I was thinking about buying the rights to Moe's in WV and asked him his thoughts given his 20 years living there. Within 24 hours he had me reams of analyzed population and income analysis that lead us to consider to good cities we didn't even know about....but then we ended up not doing the deal for a number of reasons, including his warnings about the legal climate.

It is tough for me to overemphasize what a resource he could be for you.

And going to look through the couch cushions to see if I can dig up a couple more million for ya...
