

Account: South Carolina State Parks

Content type: Facebook Page - Timeline posts

Record ID: 20161213South-Carolina-State-ParksTimeline-posts52748_10154776003958166

South Carolina State Parks

at 13:00:01 on 12/13/2016 UTC · 🌐

TIDBIT! Most warblers have migrated on to tropical locations for the winter -- but one species that resides here all year is the Pine Warbler. Females are a rather drab olive-gray and may have some faint yellow. Males tend to be much brighter yellow, especially on the throat and undersides. Pine Warblers will visit suet feeders during the winter months and their song is a rapid musical trill. Have you seen one?

Rosemarie Burguiere What plant is that bird perching on?? Anyone know?

at 13:55:28 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Margie Kehoe Jenkins We've seen these on our feeder here in Cresswind

at 13:57:36 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Debbie Radford Beauty berry

at 13:58:50 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Linda Shaffer Tomsen Yes! At our feeder. We thought it was a gold finch.

at 14:03:02 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Toni Cato-Steger I've been enjoying watching them here in N. Augusta, SC.

at 14:05:42 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Holly Phillips McPheeters Yes, at our birdbath, in Fair Play, SC yesterday! I too, thought it was a Gold Finch. They LOVE our beauty berries too!

at 14:21:04 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Dawn Watson Weaver Bird feeding station at Musgrove Mill SHS!

at 14:39:58 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Linda Nunez Thanks for sharing! What a great picture of the Pine Warbler!

at 14:43:20 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Rosemarie Burguiere Debbie Radford aptly named! Thanks

at 15:30:35 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Isabel Sexton I have seen these at my feeder also and thought they were finches.

at 16:49:48 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Ronda Keller Nicholson Koey
at 17:34:44 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Linda Kirkland Beautiful
at 20:30:37 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Emily Owens Poole Yes! Had a few in my yard over the weekend!
at 22:43:39 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Carla Moore Dabney I have them in Mauldin SC.
at 23:23:38 on 12/13/2016 UTC

Susan Turpin Illner Yes, our cat India alerted us to its presence.
at 0:12:26 on 12/14/2016 UTC

Gwen Steele Judy Ball Nester
at 0:47:33 on 12/14/2016 UTC

Judy Ball Nester I saw one this past weekend at my feeder in Summerville,,, I too thought at first it was a gold finch later to discover it is a pine warbler.
at 2:04:53 on 12/14/2016 UTC

Becky Abraham Yes, we see them here in our woods--we encourage the beauty bushes along our borders for the birds.
at 3:48:39 on 12/14/2016 UTC

Lower Savannah River Alliance Beautiful!
at 6:24:11 on 12/14/2016 UTC

Pam Ledbetter Saw one today!
at 1:41:33 on 12/15/2016 UTC