

From: Law360 In-Depth <news-q@law360.com>
To: Adams, ChaneyChaneyAdams@gov.sc.gov
Date: 6/27/2016 5:52:40 AM
Subject: In Case You Missed It: Trump's Law: Do Attorneys Have Something To Fear In The Candidate's View Of The Courts?

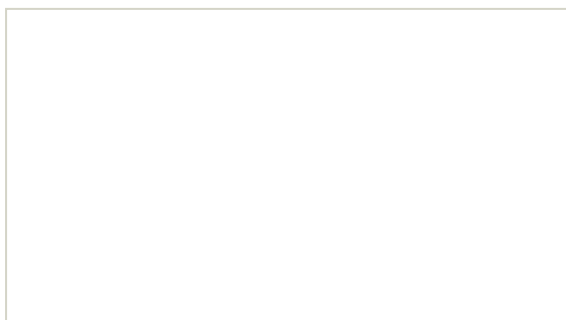

Feature

Trump's Law: Do Attorneys Have Something To Fear In The Candidate's View Of The Courts?

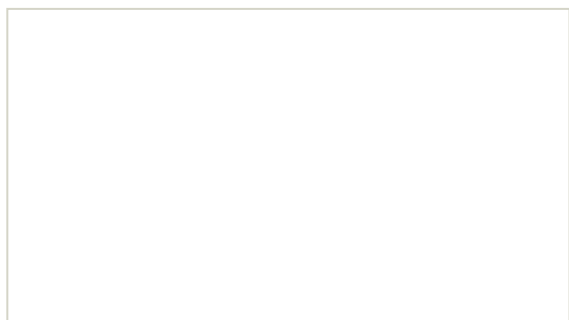

By Max Stendahl

Donald Trump's campaign trail comments on judges and the courts have some lawyers worried that a President Trump would challenge the legal system in an unprecedented manner.

Feature

News Analysis

How BigLaw Contributes To High Attorney Depression Rates

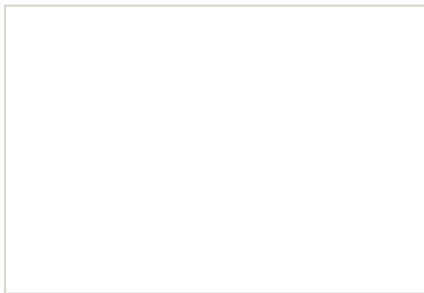

By Natalie Rodriguez

Ever-higher billable hour targets. Round-the-clock accessibility. BigLaw's pressure-cooker culture is to blame in part for the heightened risk of depression, anxiety and substance abuse problems among lawyers – and fear of career-damaging consequences keeps many suffering in silence.

Justice Kennedy Swings To The Left As Legacy Looms Large

By Jeff Zalesin

Justice Anthony Kennedy has irked Republicans with recent decisions on affirmative action and gay rights, avoiding what could have been a conservative legacy.

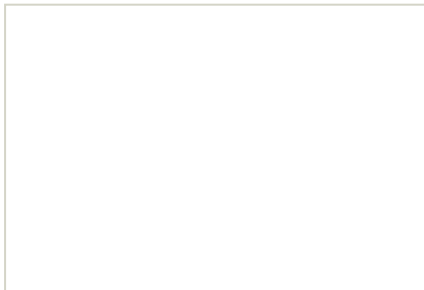

News Analysis

Sidley On A High Court Losing Streak

By Allison Grande

Sidley Austin LLP has managed just three Supreme Court victories since 2013 despite appearing before the justices more than a dozen times, a rather dismal record for the appellate heavyweight. But firm leader Carter Phillips says the numbers don't tell the full story.

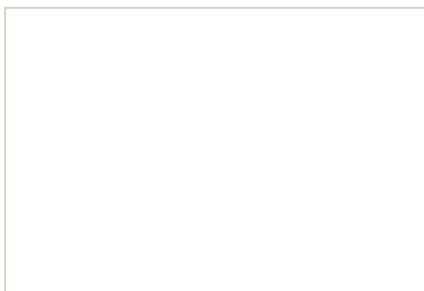

News Analysis

Latham's Reputation On Line In Year's Biggest Merger Debacle

By Braden Campbell

A Delaware Chancery Court ruling that Latham & Watkins acted in good faith in its role in a failed merger also noted that the firm's reputation took a hit from the saga, whose peculiar circumstances provide a cautionary tale for all M&A players.

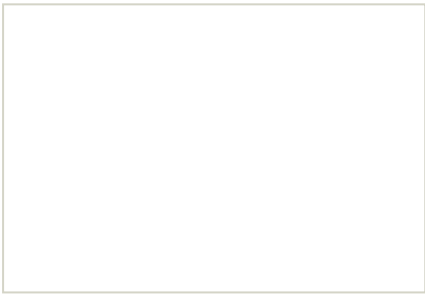

News Analysis

Brexit A Bonanza For London Law Firms ... For Now

By Mark Taylor

Although the U.K.'s vote to exit the EU will lead to a surge of work for law firms guiding clients through the expected regulatory upheaval, resources are ultimately expected to shift out of London as firms follow clients to other cities in the EU.

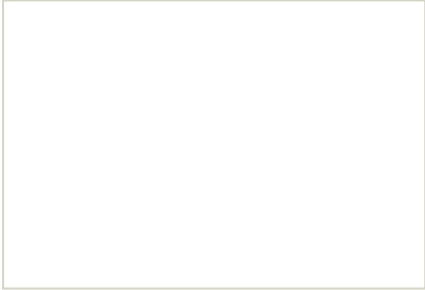

News Analysis

Taking Stock Of The Brexit

Law360 Looks At Fallout From The UK's Historic Vote

By Law360 Staff

The U.K. legal system faces the enormous task of adapting to a new political reality after Britain's vote to leave the European Union set the nation on an uncertain path.

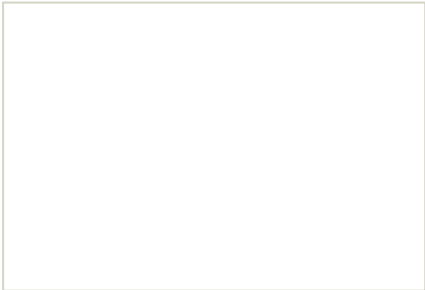

News Analysis

Supreme Court May Get Another Gay Rights Case Soon

By Jeff Overley

In his memorable dissent in Obergefell, Chief Justice John Roberts predicted a backlash that could force the Supreme Court to weigh in once again on gay rights. One year later, the LGBTQ legal landscape might prove those words prescient.

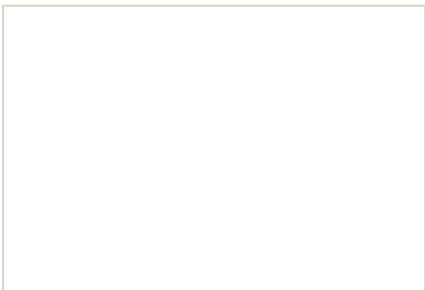

You Can Quote Me On That

The Week's Best In Legal Talk

Canaries, Ostriches and Zeppelins

By Richard McVay

This week's quotes take jabs at illegal evidence gathering, meta-fees and obscure bands. Here are the week's best lines from the legal world.

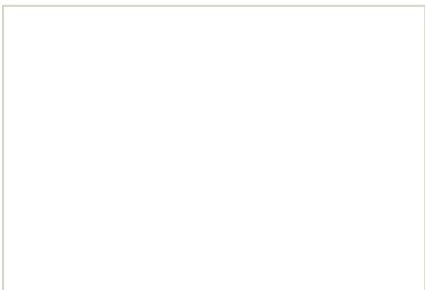

Sidebar

Ed Hochuli Defends The Ending Of 'Lost' And Other Unpopular Calls

By Melissa Maleske

Litigator and NFL referee Ed Hochuli opened up to Law360 about working on the weekends, the ending of "Lost," and getting flak for his on-field calls.

Secret Lives of Lawyers

Sheppard Mullin's Richard Simmons Rallies The Lakers Faithful

By Daniel Siegal

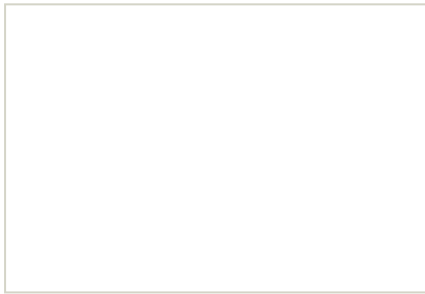

As a bona fide Lakers superfan, Richard Simmons has scored his own championship ring, celebrated a title with the team, and navigated the complex emotions surrounding clients who root for the Celtics.

Op-Ed

A Plea For Diversity On The SEC

By James A. Kidney

The appointment of commissioners to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has been a political after-thought. Nominees have lacked relevant business experience and come from a narrow, inbred community since long before the current administration.

Not sure if your firm subscribes? Ask your librarian.

We hope you found this message to be useful.

However, if you'd rather not receive future emails of this sort, you may unsubscribe here.

Please DO NOT reply to this email. For customer support inquiries, please call 1-646-783-7100 or visit our Contact Us page.

Law360 | Portfolio Media, Inc, 111 West 19th Street, 5th Floor, New York, NY 10011