Heading out for a camping trip this weekend? Don't forget that you don't want to feed the raccoons! They are very intelligent and mischievous! Watch this video for some helpful hints on how to raccoon-proof your campsite. #KeepMeWild

Raccoon Proof Your Campsite!

This sneaky raccoon was caught stealing a banana from inside this tent!

Evan Stiner Do you recommend hanging your food? I do so when hiking in the backcountry never do it at the State Parks. I use the CDT method.

Peter Bendal Kear We had a squirrel steal a piece of cooked bacon we had just set out on the picnic table and were bringing out the rest of breakfast. It was a turn your back to get handed something from inside the camper and turn back around type moment. BTW this was at Santee State Park. Our worst encounter with raccoons was at a campground in the Florida Keys which says a lot considering how they were and assume still are at Hunting Island.

Catherine Goodband While camping at Hunting Island we were woken up by 3 raccoons trying to get into our cooler. The problem for them was the fattest one was sitting on top keeping it shut lol
