The use of the Governor's mansion for campaign purposes is proper and authorized by SC Code Section 8-13-765, which says government office buildings can't be used in an election campaign, but this prohibition specifically "does not apply to a public official's use of an official residence." Clearly, the mansion is an official residence and therefore is a proper venue for election campaign activity.

Morning Chaney,

I had a question about your boss' ad on behalf of Marco Rubio today. Specifically, where was it filmed? The background looks a little similar to the governor's mansion, but I'm not sure and was hoping you can clear up.

Thanks,
