

Poultry fest flourishes

It's one of the largest agricultural festivals in the state, drawing more than 100,000 people. Always held the second weekend in May, the South Carolina Poultry Festival is full of fun, exciting events.

With five outdoor entertainment stages and street dances on both Friday and Saturday night, the festival, now in its 14th year, is sure to have something for everyone. The festival is held on the streets of Batesburg-Leesville. Organizers say that it began as a tribute to the poultry industry, which means a lot to the twin cities.

The festival will feature fireworks, arts and crafts and a parade, as well as a chicken calling contest and chicken recipe contest. On Saturday morning, joggers will compete in the 5K race and one-mile fun run.

For more information about the festival, and more specific information about bands and events, please call (803) 532-9273 or 532-3866.

Next Ag Tour: Costa Rica

The 2001 Winter Ag Study Tour will be held in Costa Rica from Jan. 31-Feb.8.

The S.C. Department of Agriculture holds two Ag Study Tours each year to give farmers, processors—or anyone interested in agriculture—a look at agriculture in other parts of the world.

The trip will include various tours that will give participants an opportunity to learn new and innovative production and marketing techniques suitable for ag operations here in South Carolina.

Only 35 seats are available for this trip. If you would like more information, contact Marketing Specialist Roy Copelan at SCDA at (803) 734-2200.

May is Mental Health Month

Many times, people with mental illnesses aren't treated with the same understanding as people with other physical illnesses, according to mental health professionals. That's why Mental Health Month was initiated 50 years ago. The month was set aside to raise awareness of mental health, mental illnesses and insurance discrimination against people with mental illnesses. From depression and anxiety disorders to schizophrenia and obsessive/compulsive disorders, mental illness strikes one in five Americans each year. But many people go untreated because of the stigma associated with it. During the month, the S.C. Department of Mental Health is launching a public awareness campaign meant to help eliminate the stigma associated with mental illness.

CRP Incentives offered

Landowners can receive more money for participation in the Continuous Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The new financial incentives will total $350 million over three years and include signing bonuses and more money for installing and maintaining conservation practices. Those practices include Field Windbreak, Grass Waterway, Filterstrip and Riparian Buffer. The bonus is equal to $10 per acre times the number of years of the contract, which could range from 10 to 15 years. Land offered for CRP must have been rowcropped for two of the past five years, with the exception of marginal pastureland. For more information or specifics, call Linda Floyd at (803) 806-3857.

Cotton Referendum to be held soon

The Agriculture Commission of South Carolina will soon conduct a referendum by mail to S.C. cotton growers to continue the Marketing Order for the S.C. Cotton Board. The referendum will be conducted June 1-14. If the eligible voting producers vote not to continue the Marketing Order, it will be terminated. The Marketing Order provides a legal framework through which a Cotton Board could advertise and promote, research and market cotton products to achieve the declared policy of the Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act. A South Carolina Cotton Board composed of seven producer members and one ex-officio member will administer the Order. Copies of the Marketing Order may be obtained from D. Leslie Tindal, Secretary, Agriculture Commission of South Carolina, P. O. Box 11280, Columbia, South Carolina, 29211.

Celebrate Mother's Day with S.C. Quality Products!

Mother's Day is May 14th. Remember when everyone wore a white carnation to church on Mother's Day to celebrate the occasion? Very few observe that ritual today. But, there is one custom that has continued throughout the years. Most mothers all around the state will be doing what they always do on their special day—cooking a delicious meal for their families.

For a long time, my staff and I have worked hard to promote S.C. products. But, finding those products in the supermarket has been like looking for a needle in the haystack some consumers have said. Shoppers have told us that they wanted to buy S.C. products to support our agriculture industry. They say that reading the labels takes time—and, even then, it's still sometimes difficult to tell. Finally, one of our supermarket chains has made it easy to see exactly which products are produced or processed here.

In a cooperative effort with our Marketing and Promotion Division, IGA has created an innovative system to actually show their customers which products are S.C. produced or processed. The independent stores have displayed the "S.C. Quality" logo on their shelves at the point of purchase, and they are using the logo in their ads to show which products are S.C. grown or processed. Now, for the first time, buying S.C. fresh and processed products is really simple. Shoppers need to look no further than the blue and white "S.C. Quality" seal.

S.C. products are locally grown or processed. That means it takes less time to get those products from field to fork. Less time from farm to table means fresher products. In addition, buying S.C. products keeps our dollars in the state, nourishing our own economy.

When we buy S.C. products, we're supporting local communities, especially in those areas that have had job and revenue losses. I commend IGA for working with us to spotlight "S.C. Quality" products in their stores. And, I am sure that other supermarket chains will follow their lead and join us in this campaign. South Carolina farm and agribusiness people like those at IGA, working together, bring consumers the best that agriculture has to offer—the food on the table. Now that IGA has joined our effort, S.C. Quality's really an easy choice!

W. Lee Flowers & Co. in Lake City markets and distributes food and food products to approximately fifty company-owned and independent IGA supermarkets in South Carolina. Doug Stone, Advertising Director, said, "When consumers see the IGA—Hometown Proud sign, they can rest assured that it's IGA—Homegrown and Home Processed Proud! IGA supermarkets are major employers in their hometowns, and those individuals who make up our workforce represent a diverse group. They also make individual contributions to their local communities. That's why we encourage our shoppers to buy S.C. products. Our employees and their families, our customers, and our local communities are important to us. We are Hometown Proud!"

"I'm delighted to see my products on the shelf at IGA," said local processor Scott Harvin, "but I'm even more impressed that they stand out from the crowd with those shelf cards. This is one great way to assist our state's farmers and processors all over the state. All of my agriculture and agribusiness partners who have S.C. products in this and other stores around the state really appreciate IGA for this opportunity."

So, when you mothers go to the supermarket to buy your groceries for your special day—or any day, make sure to look for the "S.C. Quality" logo. Buy S.C. products. You'll not only be making a significant contribution to the economy in your local communities, but you'll be sure that you're getting the very best products available for your family.

So, whether the family takes you out to dinner or whether you prepare your own meal, I salute all of those who have nurtured and cared for us. And, I hope you have a very Happy Mother's Day!
