South Carolina State Parks

at 0:00:01 on 4/30/2014 UTC

DELICIOUS SNACK! Check out this picture of a water moccasin snacking on a fish at Poinsett State Park. Just a cool moment a park ranger walked up on yesterday at the park!

Vanessa Kazarian Rinaldo ewwww ewwww ewww!!! lol....lucky him/her!!!!

Wes Cooler I'm always amused when people ask if they can bite under water. Great photo, by the way. Not often you get to see them working down a fish.

James Milsap I think I'm gonna invest in a pair of snake proof boots. I hate snakes.....

at 2:11:20 on 4/30/2014 UTC

Martha Ann Young Gordon Well, sir. That cures me from walking around freely in South Carolina State Parks! ;)

at 3:05:28 on 4/30/2014 UTC

Karen Gauny Crisalli Nature is natural...life happens

at 4:46:43 on 4/30/2014 UTC

John Decker Not a moccasin. It's a water snake. Here's a "copperhead". Aka water snake.

at 5:21:23 on 4/30/2014 UTC

René Henderson Though I detest snakes, thank you for sharing with me!! Poinsett has always been one of my favorite parks, spent many days there growing up.

at 8:19:53 on 4/30/2014 UTC

Alison Shaw Grindstaff Wow that's a big copperhead!!!

at 12:46:27 on 4/30/2014 UTC

Jim Montgomery John Decker it is indeed a water moccasin

at 13:04:47 on 4/30/2014 UTC

John Decker Jim Montgomery, looked at a bunch of pics last night and seen some diff. colors of em I haven't seen before ( I expect a dark black) I can believe it now but you have to agree a lot of ppl jump to conclusions about snakes before they actually know what it is.

John Decker It's a banded water snake Alison. Took this pic on the Catawba River near Rock Hill. Yes, he/she's big. Over 4 feet long and thick. It's eating a baby channel cat.

Stephen Dailey Snakes have to eat too... eautiful

at 17:24:40 on 4/30/2014 UTC

Cindy Long This is the outdoors,not Disneyland....

at 23:49:29 on 4/30/2014 UTC

Rosanne Gauny Karen, why did you do this to me for don't like them

at 1:47:25 on 5/01/2014 UTC

Bruce Mullins Piscivorus is in the name...
