Marbles Kids
Museum
RALEIGH, NC

Please, Take the Children

It's the perfect destination for little ones (ten and under) and the adults who love them. The museum is hands-on, minds-on and offers that rare combination of play and learning that makes everyone happy. It's been recognized nationally for creative exhibits and bold approaches to play-based learning. There are themed exhibits, summer camps, and daily programs, plus IMAX educational and feature films, and dozens of special events. Perfect.

Want to introduce your little ones to music? Invite them to dance up and down the "stairs" in Stepnote. With each step, a musical note is heard, accompanied by colorful lights.

Or, visit a new exhibit, Tree Tunes, and watch the young ones create an outdoor orchestra with chimes, xylophones, and bells. It's a percussive musical playground. My piano teacher would have loved them both!

For budding artists, the Art Loft allows kids to unleash their free expression and creativity through painting, drawing and sculpting.

In IdeaWorks, imagination takes over as children design, create and build all kinds of things, from everyday products to vehicles – and more.

Future gardeners will embrace Sun Sprouts, with its real garden.

Dirty hands are a must here, as little ones explore herbs and investigate worm excavation. (No worms are hurt in this hands-on exhibit.)

And what about tomorrow's business leaders? They'll learn smart ways to spend and save with Moneypalooza, a colorful world of high energy and great fun. Think your cuties are too young to learn about earning money, building budgets and spending wisely? It's all in the realm of the possible at this imaginative exhibit.

WOW Factor: You simply can't pass up the opportunity to expose children to intelligently conceived playtime that teaches them important lessons. In a fun-filled environment.

Hint: Dress for the weather. There are two outdoor adventure areas. You can enjoy food at the museum, or bring your own for outdoor seating. Moore Square Park is across the street and is great for a picnic. Visit the Marbles Corner Store for exclusive gear, plus toys, games and gadgets.

Where in the Carolina world are you?

In this southern small town, folks will welcome you, offer directions (or suggestions for dinner), and point you toward two of its favorite attractions – historical sites, and pocketbook-friendly shopping.

Yes, there's something for everyone, and you easily can get here from anywhere.

Where are you?

Carolina Famous Faces

Ben Bernanke Born Dec. 13, 1953

He served as Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System under both President George W. Bush and President Barack Obama, and presided over one of the most difficult economic periods in recent history. Prior to his appointment, he was Chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors and before that served the Federal Reserve System in a number of roles.

Dr. Bernanke also served as a Professor of Economics and Public Affairs at Princeton University. Married with two children, he was born in Augusta, GA, and raised in the small town of Dillon, in northeastern South Carolina. He attended public schools and according to some reports, earned money before and during college by working at South of the Border, a popular "highway oasis" along Interstate 95. Some reports suggest that he attained the highest SAT score in South Carolina in the year he graduated from high school.

Dr. Bernanke received his B.A. in economics in 1975 from Harvard (summa cum laude) and a Ph.D. in economics in 1979 from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Today, he's a distinguished fellow in residence with the economic studies program at the Brookings Institution, affiliated with the Hutchins Center on Fiscal and Monetary Policy, which will bring rigorous research analysis to critical questions in vital areas of economic policy.

In 2015 he published The Courage to Act, a memoir of his experiences with the Federal Reserve, including his discussion of

Holiday Happenings

Hello Tony,

With the holiday celebrations upon us ... no matter where you live, the

Carolina life and adventures await folks like you from Columbia.

We say, forget the frigid tundra. Photo ops, golf, spas, beach, tennis and trail conditions here are warm and inviting. So expect to pay less and get more as you tour (with Lassie, if you like), the land of "smiling faces" and "beautiful places." Little ones in your life? Great ways to entertain them here.

Watch for an abundance of new discoveries on CarolinaLiving.com, including town profiles and current tax advantages, all guaranteed to make the Kester life happier (and easier on the pocketbook).

Our 2017 wish for you in Columbia: Good health and abundant prosperity. Happy travels around the Carolinas! Finding what feeds your soul.

Austin & Samantha Genke + Alessandra = Boxcarr Cheese

They had me at the website. And then, Rosie's Robiola sealed the deal. Yum. Delicate, creamy, gooey, truffles – all words that, when used together with a cheese description, compelled me to look further.

Located somewhat north of Hillsborough, NC, Boxcarr is the culmination of a mix of talented and committed individuals who settled here to create their cheesy goodness. Co-founders (and brother and sister) Austin and Samantha Genke have influences that span the East Coast, from Florida to New Jersey.

Samantha Genke moved to North Carolina and for the next decade, worked in creameries and learned from some of the best in the business. Austin Genke graduated from the Culinary Institute of America, and for a time, worked in Las Vegas at both the MGM Grand and the Venetian.

In North Carolina, the siblings farm 30 acres, run a food truck and catering business, and have developed an amazing group of cheeses. Today, they continue to draw from their Italian-American roots and are raising their respective families on the farm.

Alessandra, from Northern Italy, works with Samantha in the design and development of the cheese-making process. They traveled to Italy recently to research cheese making and the results are delicious. In addition to the Robiola, you'll want to try their Cottonseed, Lissome, Campo and Feta. ## Golf School

By Larry Gavrich

I took my first golf lesson at the age of 13. It would be another 50 years before I took my next one. My first instructor, a 60-something driving range pro in New Jersey, had one thing to say during my 45-minute lesson: "Roll your wrists, roll your wrists, roll your wrists" over and over again. What a nice way to earn $25, which is what I recall my parents paid for me to listen to that mantra. It took me most of the next five decades to overcome a chronic snap hook off the tee.

Except for one golf instruction session a few years ago, a birthday present from my wife, I have steered clear of golf lessons. Occasionally in some waiting room or another, I'll pick up Golf Digest or Golf Magazine and scan a club professional's advice on how to hit a 50-yard shot into a howling wind, or the best way to blast from a buried lie in a bunker, but that has been the extent of my formal golf instruction over the years. Yet because I have golfing buddies who swear they have benefited from golf instruction, I decided to conquer my fears and

Carolina Cuisine

Muscadine Aspic

OK, I know what you're thinking. Isn't aspic savory – often tomato-based? And although it's southern to the core, doesn't it have as many enemies as friends? The answers are no, and yes.

Traditionally, it's savory, but for this creation by Chef Wesley Fulmer at Motor Supply Co. Bistro, one of Columbia's favorite restaurants, his go-to flavor is the equally southern taste of the muscadine grape. Are you ready for Aspic of Local Muscadine Grapes? It's the perfect foil for a charcuterie plate.
