Gary Peacock and Jack DeJohnette

Sunday, November 30 at 8pm

Prudential Hall

Last year marked the 30th anniversary of this iconic trio, which has garnered awards around the world for its innovative jazz, including five Grammy nominations. Keith Jarrett, Gary Peacock and Jack DeJohnette first played together in 1966-68 as members of the Charles Lloyd Quartet, then in 1970 with Miles Davis. With their recording of American standards as a group in 1983, a jazz legend was made.
