

From: Maybank, Burnet R. III <BMaybank@nexsenpruet.com>
To: Maybank, Burnet R. III <BMaybank@nexsenpruet.com>
Date: 9/17/2013 2:59:12 PM
Subject: ED & SALT LSs: G'ville News Editorial on Angel Investors Act

---

ADVERTISEMENT

Angel tax credits finally in place

Sep. 16, 2013 6:30 PM |

In another step toward accessing the capital that can fuel high-growth start-up companies, state entrepreneurs can begin registering with the Secretary of State to let their investors claim a 35 percent tax credit on their investments. The credits are part of a bill that was passed earlier at the end of the legislative session, and its goal is to grow the state's knowledge economy.

This is an initiative that was debated for several years, and is past due in South Carolina given the importance of start-up businesses in creating a vibrant economy. Other states that have done this have seen significant increases in the investment made in high-growth start-up companies. It is about time that South Carolina taps into the greater sums of money that are sitting on the sidelines in this state.

The first step is for entrepreneurs to register their start-ups as "high-growth small businesses." That will open the tax credits to investors that meet Securities and Exchange Commission regulations for income level and asset value. In 2010, there were about 115,000 households in the state that would have qualified for the credit, but less than half a percent of them were investing in businesses.

To qualify as high-growth small businesses, companies must be less than five years old, have fewer than 25 employees, annual revenues of less than $2 million and the potential to grow quickly. The companies will be involved in manufacturing processing, warehousing, wholesaling, technology and some other related fields.

In an op-ed that appeared in June in The Greenville News, state Rep. Dwight Loftis and Wayne Roper of the South Carolina Biotechnology Industry Organization, said the law could triple the number of "angel investors" in South Carolina, and inject $57 million in private capital into high-tech, high-growth businesses. In Minnesota, a 2010 investment tax credit drew $63 million in investment and distributed $15.8 million tax credits. In Wisconsin, a similar law quadrupled the number of angel investors and attracted $141.5 million in private investment after three years. About half the states have similar laws, including our neighbors Georgia and North Carolina, both of which are ahead of us in attracting angel investors and venture capital funds.

Burnet R. Maybank, III
Nexsen Pruet, LLC
1230 Main Street, Suite 700 (29201)
P.O. Drawer 2426
Columbia, SC 29202
T: 803.540.2048, F: 803.253.8277
Cell: 803.960.3024

*** CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATION *** The information contained in this message may contain legally privileged and confidential information intended only for the use of the individual or entity named above. If the reader of this message is not the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that any dissemination, distribution or duplication of this transmission is strictly prohibited. If you have received this communication in error, please notify us by telephone or email immediately and return the original message to us or destroy all printed and electronic copies. Nothing in this transmission is intended to be an electronic signature nor to constitute an agreement of any kind under applicable law unless otherwise expressly indicated. Intentional interception or dissemination of electronic mail not belonging to you may violate federal or state law.

*** IRS CIRCULAR 230 NOTICE *** Any federal tax advice contained in this communication (or in any attachment) is not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used, for the purpose of (i) avoiding penalties under the Internal Revenue Code or (ii) promoting, marketing or recommending any transaction or matter addressed in this communication.