

From: Symmes, Brian <BrianSymmes@gov.sc.gov>

To:

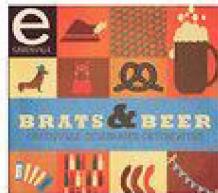

Date: 9/26/2014 9:40:53 AM

Subject: SC Front Pages – Friday, September 26, 2014

SC Front Pages – Friday, September 26, 2014

HIGH SCHOOLS, 1C
RAMS OPEN REGION PLAY

E GREENVILLE
City gears up for Oktoberfest

The Greenville News

A GANNETT COMPANY

FRIDAY,
SEPTEMBER 26, 2014
GREENVILLEONLINE.COM

ATTORNEY GENERAL ERIC HOLDER RESIGNS PAGE 1B

FINAL EDITION

Call to campus police set off search for Hipps

Tucker Hipps fell to his death in this area underneath State 93. Hipps' body was found Monday afternoon.

MYKAL MCEDOWNEY/STAFF

Recording released of conversation on regular line, not 911

By Ron Barnett
Staff writer
rbarnett@greenvillenews.com

CLEMSON — A friend of Tucker Hipps called the Clemson University Police on Monday afternoon before Hipps' body was found in Lake Hartwell to ask if anyone there knew his whereabouts but he didn't want to file a report, according to a recording released by campus police Thursday.

The caller told a dispatcher he had been running with Hipps and fellow Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity brothers that morning and didn't realize he didn't make it back with the group until they returned to campus.

It was not a 911 call but a call to the regular campus police line, Chief Johnson Link said. The students did not file a missing person report, but his officers began looking for Hipps right after the call came in at 1:45 p.m., he said.

See HIPPS, Page 4A

These two parallel bridges are where Hipps fell into the shallow water of Lake Hartwell during a run with other fraternity members on Monday morning.

MYKAL MCEDOWNEY/STAFF

Supreme Court: Tax agency violated spirit of FOI

Records request regarded 2012 breach of tax data

By Tim Smith
Staff writer
tsmith@greenvillenews.com

Records request regarded 2012 breach of tax data

Thanks to this ruling," he said. "Information needs to be timely. This may send a message, I think."

Sloan is no stranger to FOIA battles or court challenges of state and local government. He has sued numerous agencies, the Legislature and even the governor

Regulator 'surprised' Duke hasn't acted yet

Company vowed to remove coal ash from two basins

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer
tsmith@greenvillenews.com

COLUMBIA — A state utility regulator says he is surprised and disappointed that Duke Energy has yet to remove any coal ash from any of its South Carolina sites even though coal ash is being removed from utility basins in North Carolina.

But a Duke spokesman told The Greenville News that none of the coal ash from its North Carolina sites has yet been removed and said relocating the material requires regulatory approval.

The comments of state Public Service Commissioner G. O'Neal Hamilton of Bennettsville came after an attorney for environmental groups told the commission Thursday that the coal ash lagoons at Duke's W.S. Lee Steam Station in Anderson County are unsafe and pollute.

Duke on Tuesday told the South Carolina Public Service Commission, which regulates utilities, that it would remove coal ash from a 17-acre coal ash basin closed in the 1970s at Lee as well as a coal ash storage area there and would tell environmental regulators by the end of the year what it will do about the ash in two active basins on the site. Duke plans to close the basins after it converts its facility from coal to natural gas next year.

The basins are located next to the Santee River and about seven miles upstream from drinking water intakes for two communities.

Duke has not yet decided when it will move the coal ash or where, officials said Tuesday. The utility maintains the dams and active basins at the Lee site are safe and is working on a remediation plan to fix the slope on one of the basins to make it meet industry standards, officials have said.

"I think it's somewhat of a surprise to this commission that no ash is being removed because this has been an ongoing situation that we've heard about and talked about," Hamilton told Holloman at one point. "We've seen reports of trucks moving in North Carolina and I assumed that was happening here and it's a little disappointing."

Ryan Mosier, a Duke spokesman, said no coal ash has yet been removed from any of its North Carolina sites.

He said a decision has been made to remove coal ash from four of the company's 14 North Carolina sites, including Asheville. He said the utility must go through a regulatory process to remove the ash.

"Excavation plans will need to be submitted and approved by state regulators before that work could begin," he said. "We're exploring options for where that ash could go at the sites where we've decided relocation will be needed. We are continuing our engineering work at the other 10 North Carolina sites to inform closure decisions that are protective in the long-term, just as we are in South Carolina at W.S. Lee and Roberson."

Environmental officials have asked that coal ash, a byproduct of burning coal that contains trace amounts of arsenic

GOOD NEWS AT PUMP: Gasoline prices are down and going lower. A4

Lee Corso, masquerading as Cocky, brandishes a real rooster, taunting his co-host Kirk Herbstreit on ESPN's GameDay broadcast in October 2013. The popular pregame show returns to Columbia on Saturday.

GAMEDAY IS BACK

The University of South Carolina will grab the national college football spotlight this weekend with the arrival of ESPN College GameDay.

The national show previewing college football games will air for three hours Saturday from the Horseshoe. The Gamecocks host the University of Missouri at 7 p.m. at Williams-Brice Stadium.

USC'S RECORD WHEN ESPN GAMEDAY VISITS

Nov. 10, 2001: Florida 54, USC 17
Sept. 11, 2004: Georgia 20, USC 16
Aug. 31, 2005: USC 24, Central Florida 15
Oct. 28, 2006: Tennessee 31, USC 24
Oct. 9, 2010: USC 35, Alabama 21
Oct. 6, 2012: USC 35, Georgia 7

2012, when the Gamecocks beat Georgia.

Some of the events Friday for USC students and Saturday for the GameDay broadcast, which is open to the public,

FRIDAY

11 a.m. to 2 p.m.: Poster-making for students to wave during the broadcast; in front of the Russell House

11:45 a.m.: Pep rally featuring Cocky and USC cheerleaders; in front of the Russell House

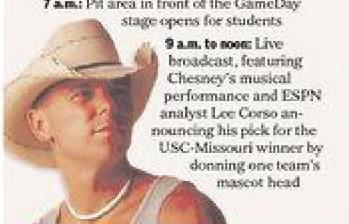

Noon to 2 p.m.: Cornhole contest for students with a top prize of two backstage passes to GameDay; in front of the Russell House

5 p.m.: Camping by students starts on the east end of the Horseshoe between the GameDay set and McKissick Museum

SATURDAY

7 a.m.: Pit area in front of the GameDay stage opens for students

9 a.m. to noon: Live broadcast, featuring Chesney's musical performance and ESPN analyst Lee Corso announcing his pick for the USC-Missouri winner by donning one team's mascot head

Columbia couple's 'Amazing' story

>>> ON THESTATE.COM

Follow live updates from College GameDay's visit to the Horseshoe starting at 8:45 a.m. Saturday on thestate.com.

>>> IN BUSINESS

Fans can bite into a new brand of hot dogs Saturday at Williams-Brice Stadium.

B4

>>> IN SPORTS

1994 team, USC's first bowl-winner, to be honored at Saturday's game. C1

The State

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 2014 | THESTATE.COM

Does ex-trooper who shot driver have PTSD?

Criminal lawyer says that's a logical defense to explain his actions

By JOHN MONK
jmonk@thestate.com

A former South Carolina Highway Patrol trooper facing criminal charges in connection with shooting a driver in the Columbia area may have had post-traumatic stress disorder syndrome from a prior shooting incident, a Columbia lawyer said Thursday.

"It's a logical defense for what happened, and a reasonable one in some cases - but there has to be a valid basis," said Joe McCulloch, who has handled numerous criminal cases.

McCulloch said that on Thursday morning, when he watched the dashcam video recording of former Lance Cpl. Sean Groubert shooting Levor Jones during a routine

SEE TROOPER PAGE A6

'MOST IMPORTANT THING I'LL EVER DO'

"SportsTalk's" McCrary donates kidney to ensure his stepdaughter gets transplant

By BOB GILLESPIE
bgillespie@thestate.com

Kevin McCrary is back on the air in Columbia. One of the hosts for the S.C. Radio Network's state-wide "SportsTalk" show along with Phil Kornblut and Tom Hayes, the 30-year-old sports nut - known to friends and audiences as "K-Mac" - once again is reporting on the Gamecocks and Tigers and everything else, dishing out opin-

S.C. leads the nation in the rise of foreign-born residents. SOUTH, B1

How to fix the Braves

(Brett Gardner would be a start)

GENE SAPAKOFF,
C1

Scars remain one year after Georgetown fire

SOUTH, B1

The Post and Courier

THE SOUTH'S OLDEST DAILY NEWSPAPER • FOUNDED 1803

FRIDAY, September 26, 2014

POSTANDCOURIER.COM

Charleston, North Charleston, S.C. ★ ★ $1.00

City's tourism cops taking scenic route

Officers will target businesses that skirt the rules in historic district

A group of tourists brought in by a bus Wednesday take a tour of The Battery. Three new officers are policing Charleston tourism.

BY ABIGAIL DARLINGTON
adarlinton@postandcourier.com

The three new enforcement officers who were recently hired in the city's livability department have spent the past week on guided walking tours, carriage rides and tour buses.

They're not soaking up the sights, but learning the routes and daily operations of an industry they're starting to police next week.

The city hired the new officers after getting an earful from residents this year about the need for better enforcement of tourism regulations. The issue routinely came up in public forums and other meetings.

"They adopt these plans but then they don't enforce them. They say they manage tourism, but then they really don't."

Randy Pelzer, a resident of the South of Broad neighborhood held by the Tourism Management Advisory Committee, which has worked for the past six months to gather input from the community about their experiences with tourism in downtown Charleston.

The group of 31 residents and tourism professionals was appointed by Mayor Joe Riley in April to examine the city's Tourism Management Plan and strategize how it should be updated by the end of the year.

It's the fourth round of updates the city has ordered since its first Tourism Management Plan was adopted in 1978, which is often touted by the city as the first of its kind in the United States.

Charleston now has a reputation for regulating tourism more

Please see TOURISM, Page A1

If you go

WHAT: Tourism Management Advisory Committee meeting
WHERE: 8 a.m., Friday
WHEN: Historic Charleston Foundation, 40 East Bay St.

 Poll
Are city officials doing enough to regulate Charleston's tourism industry? Find this story at postandcourier.com/polls to vote.

PROVIDED BY THE U.S. MINT
This design rendering of Sgt. William Jasper is expected to be featured on some quarters in 2016.

Fort Moultrie's shining moment

Coins to depict Sgt. Jasper, flag in 1776 victory

BY BO PETERSEN
bpetersen@postandcourier.com

SULLIVAN'S ISLAND — Fort Moultrie is about to be made of something richer than any other park in South Carolina. Silver bullion.

An image from the history of the iconic national park at the tip of Charleston Harbor will be minted onto quarter coins in 2016. As a bonus, a number of "investment coins" will be minted, 3-inch discs of fine silver. Those coins will sell for about $225 each.

Sgt. William Jasper waving the Palmetto flag was picked by a U.S. Mint citizens committee earlier this week. Gary Marks, committee chairman, called it a depiction of an iconic moment in the classic 1776 Revolutionary War victory that immortalized the fort.

"We felt it was a heroic rendering of Sgt. Jasper," said Marks, a Lebanon, N.H., resident.

Or, as medallic artist.

"It's a great recognition, and 2016 will be the centennial celebration of the National Park Service," said Park Superintendent Tim Stone. "Sometimes Fort Moultrie gets in the shadows of Fort Sumter, but a whole lot of history took place here."

The Fort Moultrie coins will be among five national park or site designs issued for 2016 as part of the fort.

Please see COIN, Page A4

Attorney General Holder to resign

Republicans promise fight over nominee

BY NEDRA PICKLER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Eric Holder, America's first black attorney general and an unflinching champion of civil rights in enforcing the nation's laws, announced his resignation Thursday after leading the Justice Department since the first days of President Barack Obama's term. He is the fourth-longest-serving attorney general in U.S. history.

Holder, the administration's point man on the civil rights investigation into the police shooting of an unarmed 18-year-old in Ferguson, Missouri, won't leave until a replacement is confirmed, which means he could remain in office for months.

Senate Republicans signaled they were preparing for a confirmation fight after years of battles with Holder. Said Senate GOP leader Mitch McConnell: "I will be scrutinizing the president's replacement nominee to

Please see HOLDER, Page A5

Fill 'er up! Gas going below $3

Lowcountry drivers likely to see savings

BY JONATHAN FAHEY
Associated Press

The price of a gallon of gasoline soon may start with a "2" across much of the country.

Gasoline prices typically decline in autumn, and this year they are being pulled even lower by falling global oil prices. By the end of the year, up to 30 states could have an average gasoline price of less than $3 a gallon.

That's great news for Charleston resident John Hatcher, who drives a truck and often pulls a trailer full of scrap metal and other things.

He can spend up to $40 per day on gas, he said, so he estimates the price drop could save him at least $30 per week.

With prices where they are now,

he said, "I have to make trips count."

Please see GAS, Page A4

 Online
Find gas prices near you at postandcourier.com/gaspics.

Chance of rain
High 77, Low 65.
Complete 5-day forecast, B8

Bridge

07

Crossroads

09

People

03

Boles

07

Editorials

10

Sports

03

Glossary

11

Movies

04

Television

05

Gems

06

Estimates

04

The South

03

Charleston Deals today

Wild Blue Ropes
$39 for two at Wild Blue Ropes
(valued at $78).
See A2.

Game of the Week: North Augusta at Strom Thurmond – More information | 7A, 1B

'Sweet, demented charm'

'Boxtrolls' arrives in movie theaters | 1C

Aiken
Standard

FRIDAY, September 26, 2014

AIKENSTANDARD.COM

Vol. 148, No. 269 Aiken, S.C. ★★ 75¢

ESPN is coming

Gamecocks to be on GameDay

STAFF REPORTS

ESPN's "College GameDay" program will broadcast Saturday from Columbia in advance of the South Carolina vs. Missouri game. The live three-hour show, which features Chris Fowler, Lee Corso, Kirk Herbstreit and Desmond Howard, will be aired nationally beginning at 9 a.m. It will broadcast from the Horseshoe on the USC campus.

"We've always tried to get those guys here," South Carolina head coach Steve Spurrier said. "That will be added to the excitement here on campus the day of the game. (I) look forward to seeing those guys. They've been very good to us."

Country music superstar Kenny Chesney will perform at Horseshoe, and will also serve as the celebrity guest picker on the broadcast. ESPN said Chesney will do an acoustic rendition of "American Kids," a song off his new album, "The Big Revival."

Chesney is a self-proclaimed Tennessee fan, but is also a friend of

More USC info:

- Gamecocks can't pull Thompson this time | 1B
- South Carolina guarantees four-year scholarships for athletes | 1B

MCT PHOTO
South Carolina wide receiver Pharoh Cooper (11) breaks free for a long run.

Saturday's game

WHO: No. 13 South Carolina (3-1, 2-1 SEC) vs. Missouri (3-1, 0-0)

WHERE: Williams-Brice Stadium, Columbia

WHEN: Saturday at 7 p.m.

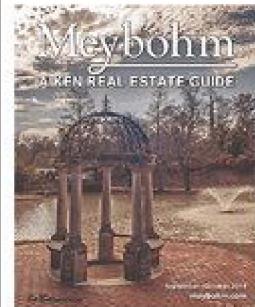

TV: ESPN

Steve Spurrier, and recently produced a documentary about the USC head coach called "The Believer" for the SEC Network.

Saturday will mark the seventh time "GameDay" has visited Columbia, and the Gamecocks own a 3-3 record in those games. The most recent was in 2012, when South Carolina beat then-fifth-ranked Georgia, 35-7.

This game is a rematch of a classic contest last season when an injured Connor Shaw came off the bench in the second half to lead the Gamecocks past the Tigers, 27-24 in double overtime. The winner of this year's game should be in control to win the SEC East Division.

COMING SATURDAY

Lawsuit filed in police shooting

BY TEDDY KULMALA
tkulmala@aikenstandard.com

The family of a man who was shot and killed by a North Augusta officer earlier this year has filed a wrongful-death lawsuit against several agencies in Aiken and Edgefield counties. Attorneys for Anthony Satterwhite filed the summons and complaint in Edgefield County on Sept. 5. The complaint lists Satterwhite as the plaintiff, representing the estate of his brother, Ernest Satterwhite. It lists Edgefield County, the Edgefield County Sheriff's Office and the North Augusta Department of Public Safety as defendants.

Complaint filed against local agencies

Please see LAWSUIT, Page 14A

AREA DEATHS

Angela Sizemore Palmer, Williston
Anne E. Monts, Aiken

Peter William Farace Jr., Aiken
Wyatt Edgar Propst,
Moncks Corner

Deaths and Funerals, 6A

WEATHER

State funding brings new textbooks

BY ROB NOVIT
rnovit@aikenstandard.com

For the past eight years, Aiken High School science teacher Edna Mills has offered a marine science class for her students – relying on a textbook published in 2003.

We thought we would get high school English books at the state level. But only the middle school books were

NEWS: Students ace portions of PASS exam, Page 3A

THE HARTSVILLE MESSENGER

Darlington County's News Leader Since 1893

50 CENTS

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 26, 2014

WWW.HARTSVILLEMESSINGER.COM

scnow.com

Brunson-Dargan's Wright named Teacher of the Year

CHRIS MCKAGEN/HARTSVILLE MESSINGER

Kathryn Wright (left) hugs Brunson-Dargan Elementary Principal Ada Sindab on Wednesday after Wright was named the 2014 Darlington County School District Teacher of the Year.

BY CHRISTOPHER MCKAGEN
cmckagen@FlorenceNews.com

HARTSVILLE — Dozens of Darlington County School District teachers, administrators and staff members filled tables inside the Lawton Park Pavilion on Wednesday evening to enjoy dinner and hear who would be named the district's 2014 Teacher of the Year.

The distinction landed upon the shoulders of Kathryn Wright, an exceptional education teacher at Brunson-Dargan Elementary School in Darlington.

District Superintendent Eddie Ingram made the announcement. Afterward, he read a letter penned by the parent of one of Wright's students.

"I've seen several pages of praise and heard many great things about Mrs. Wright from her colleagues and her principal," Ingram said. "But there was one letter that captured it all."

He quoted the letter.

"I'm a very proud parent of a child who spent the last three years in Mrs. Wright's class, learning and thriving in ways I once only dreamed about," the parent wrote. "It is because of Mrs. Wright that my child is confident and independent and engages with other children in social settings."

"Mrs. Wright always encourages her students to do their very best, to love reading and to respect others. The motto at Brunson-Dargan is 'Where dreams become a reality.' In my heart, Mrs. Wright will always be a Teacher of the Year."

An emotional Wright took to the podium to speak on behalf of her students and those who have helped her.

"Thank you so much. I have (my teacher assistant). I have a principal, who's an advocate for my children," she said. "I told my children one thing when I came through the door... I was where I was at the district office because of you. I would not have gone there if not for you. Thank you so much."

Wright earned a Bachelor of Science in sports science and a Master of Arts in special education from the University of the Philippines. She has spent time as an assistant professor at that university, as well as a preschool teacher, a physical education instructor and the instructor for a community recreation program.

In a pamphlet distributed to attendees at the banquet, Wright was quoted about her views on special

See TEACHER, Page 3A

Hartsville

Police warn of counterfeit money being circulated

From staff reports

HARTSVILLE — An influx of counterfeit U.S. money has been injected into the Hartsville area in recent weeks, according to the Hartsville Police Department. The department has arrested several people and continues to investigate the source of the counterfeit currency.

Businesses are encouraged to "be vigilant in their counterfeit currency countermeasures such as checking larger bills with testing markers and closely examining larger bills," the department said. Of the suspects already arrested in the case, several had purchased items advertised on Facebook or Craigslist with fake money.

"Individuals should take precautions and engage in transactions with people you either know or have [contact] information on such as names, addresses, phone numbers, email address, etc.," the department said. "Transactions can also take place, especially if large amounts of cash are involved, near banks or other establishments where the bills can be verified prior to releasing the property."

The department is working with the Darlington County Sheriff's Office, the Florence County Sheriff's Office, the State Law Enforcement Division and the United States

Wrongful death suit filed

Hartsville's Dwayne McDaniel carries a flag following the 2012 Class 3A state title game in memory of teammate Ronald Rouse, who died from a heart condition in October 2012.

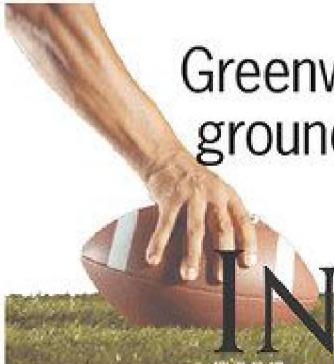

Late player's family claim negligence after death on field

BY CHRISTOPHER MCKAGEN
cmckagen@FlorenceNews.com

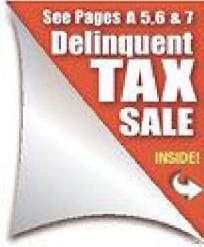

DARLINGTON — The mother and father of a Hartsville High School student athlete, who died on the playing field in 2012, filed a wrongful death lawsuit Thursday against several agencies, locally and statewide. The family demanded a jury trial in the case.

See COUNTERFEIT, Page 3A

Greenwood Christian keeping grounded in success, Sports 1B

INDEX-JOURNAL

10¢ 98, 90, 129

www.indexjournal.com

2 SECTIONS, 24 PAGES

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 2014

DAILY 75¢, SUNDAY $1.50

Greenwood Genetic Center celebrates 40 years

By FRANK BUMB
fbumb@indexjournal.com

Dr. Hal Taylor received an interesting phone call from his good friend, Dr. Roger Stevenson in 1974. Stevenson, a pediatrician, wanted to build a genetic research center.

"I was thinking Richmond, Columbia, Jacksonville," Taylor said. "And he goes, 'Greenwood, South Carolina!' So I pull out my atlas - we didn't have Google or even computers for that matter back then - and found the tiny, tiny dot for Greenwood."

Why did Stevenson choose Greenwood 40 years ago to become the home of one of the pioneering genetic research centers in the world?

"There was a great deal of support," Stevenson, a native of Neeses, said. "Jim Self was very supportive and he got the state involved."

At a celebration of its 40th anniversary the scientists and supporters of the Greenwood Genetic Center revled in the successes of the past and the promise of the future. Support for the GGC only increased, evidenced by the presence of Frank Wideman, president of the Self Family Foundation, and state Sen. Billy O'Dell.

"Over the last 10 years, in reoccurring funds, the state has pumped in about $29 million to the GGC," O'Dell said, crediting the Greenwood County legislative delegation. "Which has allowed a further $60 million in federal funds to come in. So about $90 million over the past ten years."

That funding is paired with a unique partnership between the GGC and Clemson University.

"We all know about the success that Clemson has had with the (International Center for Automotive Research)," O'Dell said. "I honestly think we're going to see the same from the research and education partnership between Clemson and the GGC."

The support GGC receives

See GENETIC, page 4A

MADDY JONES | INDEXJOURNAL

Crowds stand to clap for Dr. Roger Stevenson's, center, accomplishments and dedication for the past 40 years with Greenwood Genetic Center Thursday evening at the 40th anniversary dinner.

■ HEALTH

Enterovirus strain claims SC, too

By COLIN RIDDLE
criddle@indexjournal.com

Soap and water.
Scrub, scrub and scrub some more.

Two cases of the country's most talked-about enterovirus have been confirmed in South Carolina, bringing the number of states with confirmed cases of EV-D68 to 32 as of Wednesday, according to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention.

The two cases were treated at Children's Hospital of Greenville Health System and have since been discharged, according to Sandy Dees, senior media relations coordinator for GHHS.

The virus is one of more than 100 strains of non-polio enteroviruses. This strain was first identified in California in 1962, but has not been commonly reported.

EV-D68 can cause mild to severe respiratory illness. Mild symptoms may include fever, runny nose, sneezing, cough, and body and muscle aches.

Children who had severe respiratory illness had difficulty breathing or had wheezing, and many of these children had asthma or a history of wheezing, according to the CDC.

Infants, children and teenagers are most likely to get infected with the enterovirus and become ill, because they have yet to develop an immunity to the viruses.

"We've all had an enterovirus at some time," said Nancy Lumley, infection prevention coordinator at Self Regional Healthcare.

Lumley said hand hygiene

SUPER NETWORKING is SUPER FUN

PHOTOS BY MADDY JONES | INDEXJOURNAL

Inside an enclosed plastic bubble Landon King grasps for coupons blowing around him Thursday at the 7th annual Super Networking Night held at the James Medford Family Event Center at Piedmont Technical College. An estimated 700 attendees gathered to gain valuable information as the Chamber members showcased their businesses.

Kevin Lynch of Old Man Catering at Lander University hands a piece of candied bacon to an attendee Thursday at the 7th annual Super Networking Night held at the James Medford Family Event Center.

See VIRUS, page 4A

the Sumter ITEM

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 2014 75 CENTS

SERVING SOUTH CAROLINA SINCE OCTOBER 15, 1894

2 SECTIONS, 26 PAGES | VOL. 119, NO. 294

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Big region win

Sumter volleyball gets 3-1 home victory over Conway B1

NATION

'PotatoStock' coming after man raises $55K A6

DEATHS, B5 and B6

Melody T. Davis	Rebecca H. Gray
Carl E. Brooks	Esther D. Briggs
Allen Hunter Sr.	Henry L. Green
Adelia S. French	Stephen James
James B. Wright	Stanley Brown
Shannon Richardson	Sollie Benjamin
Sara L. Blyther	Roland Anderson Sr.

WEATHER, A12

CLOUDS, CLOUDS, GO AWAY

Mostly cloudy throughout the day and staying cool
HIGH 74, LOW 63

INSIDE

Classifieds B7
Comics A10
Lotteries A12
Opinion A11
Television A9

CONTACT US

Info: 774-1200
Advertising: 774-1237
Classifieds: 774-1234
Delivery: 774-1258
News and Sports:
774-1226

VISIT US ONLINE AT theitem.com

7 90534 00001 9

Woman, 3 children victims of home invasion by 5 men

Armed suspects at large after midweek incident

BY MATTHEW BRUCE

matthew@theitem.com

Sumter County deputies are investigating reports of a home invasion that allegedly involved five suspects storming into a residence with guns drawn Wednesday morning.

According to a report from Sumter County Sheriff's Office, the incident unfolded about 8:15 a.m. at a house in the 6400 block of Sweet Olive Court, just south of the Stateburg community.

The victim — a 28-year-old female — told officers she exited her home to drive her three children to school, only to find all four tires on her pickup truck flat. As she was checking the vehicle, five black men emerged from a wooded area across the street from the residence. The suspects allegedly forced the woman back into the house at gunpoint and ordered her

SEE INVASION, PAGE A8

No cubicle on this job site

MATT WALSH / THE SUMTER ITEM
A man works atop the AT&T cellphone tower, which sits off Marvin Street, on Sept. 17 at sunset.

1st black attorney general resigning

BY NEDRA PICKLER

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Eric Holder, America's first black attorney general and an unflinching champion of civil rights in enforcing the nation's laws, announced his resignation Thursday after leading the Justice Department since the first days of President Obama's term. He is the fourth-longest-serving attorney general in U.S. history.

Holder, the administration's point man on the civil rights investigation into the police shooting of an unarmed 18-year-old in Ferguson, Missouri, won't leave until a replacement is confirmed, which means he could remain in office for months.

In an emotional ceremony at the White House, Obama said Holder did a "superb job" and credited him with driving down both the nation's crime and incarceration rate — the first time they have declined together in more than 40 years.

"He believes as I do that justice is not just an abstract theory," Obama said. "It's a living and breathing principle. It's about how our laws interact with our daily lives."

In a speech earlier this week, Holder described the dual personal perspective he brought to the job and how it applied to the Ferguson shooting, in which a young black man was shot and killed by a white policeman.

He said he had the utmost respect for police as a former prosecutor and the brother of an officer. But, he added, "As an African-American man who has been stopped and searched by police in situations where such actions were not warranted, I also carry with me an understanding of the mistrust that some citizens harbor."

Holder told The Associated Press in an interview that he's not sure whether the Justice Department will finish its investigation into the shooting before he leaves.

"I don't want to rush them," Holder said. He said once out of office, he will direct attention to "issues that

SEE HOLDER, PAGE A8

State earns Golden Shovel Award

THE JOURNAL

Follow us on Twitter  @UpstateTodaySC

Vol. 110 No. 191

Friday, September 26, 2014

75 Cents

COLLEGE GAMEDAY

Clemson looks to refocus on season, Tar Heels. C1

PET SMARTS: Festival features fun and games, education for pet owners. B1
TEARFUL GOODBYE: Attorney general Holder announces resignation. D1

13 arrested in Oconee drug roundup

Police searching for 10 more

BY NORMAN CANNADA
THE JOURNAL

WALHALLA — Thirteen people were arrested, and authorities were searching for 10 more at press time in a drug roundup Thursday in a cooperative effort between the Oconee County Sheriff's Office and the Seneca, Walhalla and Westminster police departments.

The roundup was the seventh in the "Operation Infinity" effort started by the sheriff's office when sheriff Mike Crenshaw took office in January 2013.

"It was definitely a success," said Lt. Jeremy Chapman, who oversees the narcotics division for the sheriff's office. "A lot of these cases come in and start out with tips. These are all street-level drug deals. We want to show that we are still actively working these deals and the complex cases also. We are still fighting the war on drugs."

Chapman said the roundup took about two weeks to plan. It included a variety of drug distribution cases, from methamphetamine to marijuana, crack and prescription drugs.

"Operation Infinity is a reference to the ongoing commitment of the sheriff's office to

SEE ROUNDUP, PAGE A5

Oconee running low on building inventory

Blackwell: 'A good problem'

BY STEVEN BRADLEY
THE JOURNAL

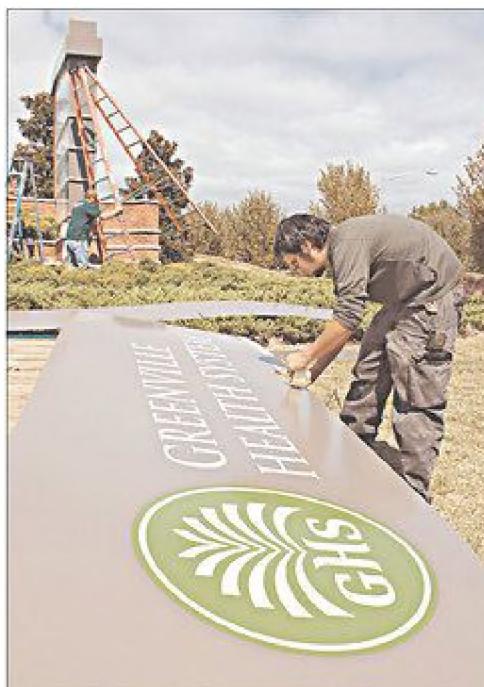

SENECA — Oconee economic development director Richard Blackwell has what he calls "a good problem" on his hands. The county is bringing in enough industry that it's running out of places to put potential businesses.

"Right now if a company called me and said, 'I need a 60,000-square-foot building in Oconee County,' I do not have that," he said.

Blackwell said he has a 30,000-square-foot building in Westminster and a similarly sized space at the Seneca Commerce Center, and the next spaces available are 130,000 and 200,000 square feet.

"I don't have anything in between," he said. "So if somebody is looking for a 60,000-square-foot space, I have to say, 'I don't have anything, which is something you never want to say in economic development.'

Blackwell said build-to-suit space is available if a company is interested in going that route, but that didn't always fit the needs of prospective

RUSSELL MELVIN/THE JOURNAL

FINISHING TOUCHES

Workers were in Seneca on Thursday putting up new Greenville Health System signs on the campus of Oconee Medical Center, which will be operated by GHS beginning on Wednesday. In addition, the hospital will revert back to its former name, Oconee Memorial Hospital, under the agreement.

Linsin: Oconee has means to pay for capital projects

BY CARLOS GALARZA-VEVE
THE JOURNAL

SENECA — Donna Linsin came armed with charts, visuals and handouts in making a presentation as to why she thinks a penny sales tax ly critical of what she deems wasteful spending of public funds. She made her presentation Thursday night to an audience of a couple dozen at a meeting of the

TUCKER HIPPS DEATH INVESTIGATION |

911 call released in death investigation

Spokesman: 15 reports of serious fraternity incidents since August 20

BY CHRISTINA CLEVELAND
THE JOURNAL

CLEMSON — On the day Clemson University police officials released a 911 call from a Sigma Phi Epsilon pledge brother about Tucker Hipps' disappearance, a university spokesman said there have been more than a dozen reports of serious incidents involving fraternity members since Aug. 20.

While no connections to hazing have been confirmed in the case of Hipps, a 19-year-old sophomore found dead Monday

SEE INCIDENTS, PAGE A5

TRANSCRIPT OF 911 CALL

Editor's note: The Clemson University Police Department released a 911 call from Tucker Hipps' pledge brother Campbell Starr on Thursday. The call came in to dispatchers at around 1:45 p.m. Monday, just hours before Hipps was found dead in Lake Hartwell. Complete audio from the 911 call is available online at UpstateToday.com.

DISPATCHER: Clemson University Police and Fire.

CAMPBELL STARR: Hi. Um. I'm, uh, I'm calling to see if either this morning or some point today y'all picked up a like 19-year-old guy, like, brown hair. He's, like, my buddy. I'm looking for him.

DISPATCHER: We haven't arrested anybody today.

STARR: No, not like an arrest. No, like, picked him up.

DISPATCHER: What do you mean picked up?

STARR: I don't know? Just like, like, just off of the side of the road or something.

DISPATCHER: I think. No. We don't just pick up people off of the side of the road. The only thing we do is if we have an arrest or if we have to send medics out to somebody.

STARR: OK.

DISPATCHER: Where was the last place you seen your buddy?

Taste of Home Cooking School

Tuesday, September 30th

at the SIMT Center • Behind FDTC
1951 Pisgah Road • Florence, SC

OVER 50 DOOR PRIZES INCLUDING A SPA PACKAGE AND HALF CARAT DIAMOND PENDANT

Tickets on sale! NOW 2 for $15!

(Seating is Limited, Rows T-Y Only)

Doors open at 4 p.m. • Cooking demonstration starts at 7 p.m.

Tickets can be purchased by credit or debit card online at www.peededeals.com

or by cash/check at 310 South Dargan Street | Florence, SC

Morning News

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 26, 2014

www.scnow.com

The Voice of the Pee Dee

75 cents

TODAY'S WEATHER

Mostly cloudy,
high 79, low 61

DETAILS 2A

Dead HHS player's family sues

Rouse's parents file wrongful death lawsuit against local, state agencies two years after tragedy

BY CHRISTOPHER MCKAGEN
Morning News
cmkagen@florencenews.com

would eventually be pronounced dead at Carolina Pines Regional Medical Center.

DARLINGTON — The mother and father of a Hartsville High School student athlete who died on the playing field in 2012 filed a wrongful death lawsuit Thursday against several agencies, locally and statewide. The family demanded a jury trial in the case.

Ronald Rouse, an 18-year-old senior football player, collapsed twice on the field Oct. 5, 2012, during a home game against Crestwood while his parents watched. Rouse

Five causes of action are listed in the lawsuit: wrongful death, a survival action on behalf of the deceased, negligent infliction of emotional distress, unfair and deceptive practices and breach of contract with an intended third-party beneficiary.

The Darlington County School District said its policies outline that it cannot comment on pending litigation.

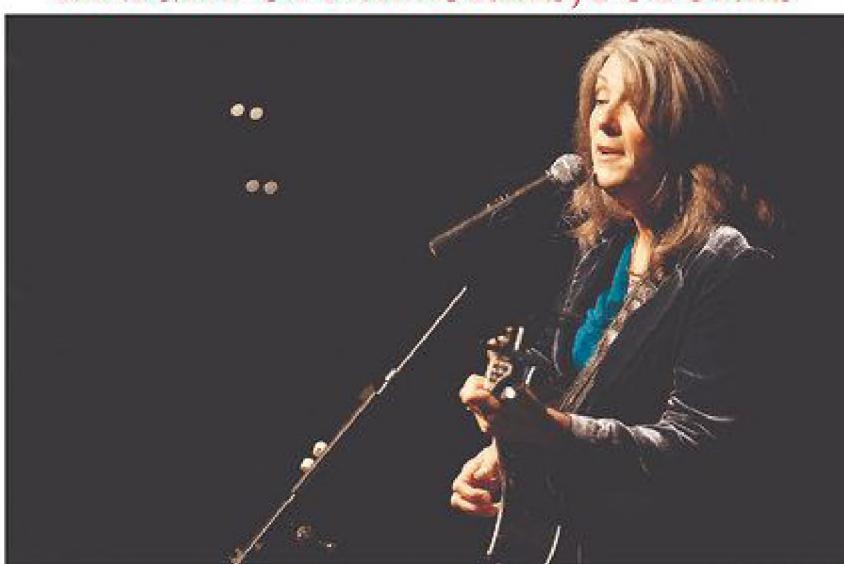

Jerome Singleton, commissioner for the South Carolina High School League, said he had not heard of

See ROUSE, Page 6A

Ronald Rouse (74, center) died in 2012 while playing for the Hartsville Red Foxes.
MORNING NEWS FILE PHOTO

A NIGHT OF MEMORIES, FUTURES

Kathy Mattea, a Grammy-winning singer and musician, performs at "An Evening of Hope," a benefit for McLeod's cancer center, Thursday night at the Florence Little Theatre.

The McLeod Regional Medical Center held "An Evening of Hope," its 15th annual cancer benefit event Thursday night at the Florence Little Theatre. The event helps support the hospital's Center for Cancer Treatment and Research.

An array of doctors, hospital staff and cancer survivors were recognized. Florence Little Theatre veterans, the band Borrowed Time and headliner Kathy Mattea performed songs. Like many audience members, all the performers were touched by cancer in some way.

"It's near and dear to my heart," said Nick Townsend, who sang "You'll Never Walk Alone." He dedicated his performance to his grandmother, a mentor and friends who are cancer survivors.

"This is a celebration of survivorship," said Dr. Rhett Spencer, a McLeod radiation oncologist. "They're living their life. That's what's important."

— Veasey Conway

FSD1 Lucy T. Davis recognized as a Healthy School

BY MELISSA ROLLINS
Morning News
mrrollins@florencecountynews.com

FLORENCE — Obesity has been on the rise in the United States in the past 10 years, especially in children.

The Alliance for a Healthier Generation is partnering with schools across the nation to stop the epidemic. One school that took the challenge headon is Lucy T. Davis Elementary School in Florence.

The school was recently awarded a Bronze Healthy School Award from the Alliance for its efforts. Davis was one of only 250 schools across the nation to be given an award.

Mandy Stoklosa, who teaches physical education and coordinates the program at the school, attended the Healthier Generation's Leader Summit in Washington, D.C., to accept the award.

"When we decided we wanted to go for the Bronze award, there was a lot of work," Stoklosa said. "I worked with the cafeteria staff to make sure that they were serving the right foods to the kids. We had to make sure that our P.E. time was as much as it needed to be for the standards and that there was activity time within the classroom."

Stoklosa said that the students were not the only focus for the program.

"Fitness Forum came and did health assessments for staff members," Stoklosa said. "They

See HEALTHY, Page 5A

Florence County

Council nears move to consolidate fire bonds

PUMP PRICES AND POLITICS

- Look for gasoline to cost less than $3 a gallon soon. A5
- S.C. gas tax likely part of any plan to improve roads. Editorial, B5

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

- Calhoun Academy faces big test
- Branchville vs. Lincoln at Rayrode Daze
- OPS on road at powerhouse Hammond
- O-W looks to stay unbeaten vs. RN
- Lake Marion hosts rival Cross
- B-E travels to Blackville-Hilda

Details on B1 and at TheTandD.com's Hot Topic on Prep Sports

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 2014

The Times and Democrat

75 CENTS • ORANGEBURG, SOUTH CAROLINA

TheTandD.com

4 SECTIONS, 48 PAGES • VOL. 133 • NO. 269

'Friend of Orangeburg'

Former Orangeburg Mayor Paul Miller shares a laugh with the audience after being named Citizen of the Year on Thursday night at the Kiwanis Club of Orangeburg's annual banquet at the First Baptist Church Family Life Center on Columbia Road. Find a related video with this story at TheTandD.com.

Former Mayor Paul Miller named Citizen of the Year

By GENE ZALESKI
T&D Staff Writer

Former Orangeburg Mayor Paul Miller thought he was at Orangeburg's Kiwanis Club Citizen of the Year banquet to see his friend David Coleman receive the prestigious award.

Instead, Miller was the one accepting the honor.

"I have enjoyed being a part of this community since I moved here and I appreciate you all giving me the opportunity to do the various things that I have done over the years," Miller told those gathered Thursday evening at Orangeburg's First Baptist Church Family Life Center.

"Thank you all for letting me serve and to be a part of this community," he said.

Miller is the 61st recipient of the award, presented by the Kiwanis Club.

Miller said he first realized he was the recipient when Jay Jackson, who presented the award, said the winner was born in Chattanooga, Tennessee.

"It does not take a rocket scientist to figure that one out," Miller said. "that a little inkling, but I had just too much going on to get into it."

In an effort to maintain the surprise, family members and co-workers entered the room after the announcement was made.

"Maybe that explains why some people have been ignoring me," Miller said to laughter. "I see some people in the back. All of them have been coy today too. Why did you all not tell me something?"

In presenting the award, Jackson described Miller as an individual who went beyond just his work as mayor.

"Paul did a lot of everything," Jackson said. "He did a lot of things in his lifetime in Orangeburg to better the community. He exemplifies the kind of person we want to name as Orangeburg's Citizen of the Year.

"He is your friend, my friend and, more importantly, a friend of Orangeburg."

The Kiwanis present the award each year to a person who has contributed to the well-being of the community over several years. Local civic clubs nominate an individual they feel has contributed to the community.

Refined Orangeburg surgeon Dr. Henry Frierson received the award last year.

Bernice Tribble, 2002's Citizen of the Year, has known Miller for the past 27 years. She and her husband, Don, moved to the city in 1987 and became Miller's neighbors.

"What you see is what you get," Tribble said. "He is always the same."

She described him as an ambassador for Orangeburg.

"He has gone out of his way to do

By MARTHA ROSE BROWN
T&D Staff Writer

CHARLESTON — Former South Carolina State University attorney Edwin Givens was sentenced Thursday to six months of probation for his role in a scheme involving the 2011 homecoming concert.

S.C. State's former chief of staff said he shouldn't have followed the university's leadership.

"You can't go along to get along. What's right is right and what's wrong is wrong. I didn't want to rock the boat. I should've turned the boat over," Givens said during his sentencing hearing on Thursday morning.

Givens said, "Ultimately the boat capsized."

During the federal court hearing, U.S. District Judge David Norton decided Givens' probation is effective from May 13, when he pleaded guilty to misprision of felony for failing to report the scheme to authorities. S.C. Supreme Court Chief Justice Jean Toal previously suspended Givens' law license for an indefinite amount of time.

"Many nights I laid awake wondering how I got myself into this predicament," Givens said.

He said while he served as general counsel at S.C. State, there was a "culture of retribution and a culture of Napoleon-like leadership."

But now, "A new culture has been created there," he said.

Documents from S.C. State appear to show the university spent about $250,000 on the 2011 Homecoming concert, but only took in about $70,000 in revenue from the event.

Givens ended up receiving about $300 during an aranged meeting at the Hilton in Columbia on Sept. 13, 2011 in connection with the concert. He gave it to a university foundation.

"I did not feel comfortable with the way I received the $300," Givens has said.

Givens said in court Thursday morning, "I'm emphatically apologetic."

"I apologize for the actions and inactions that have led me to plead guilty to misprision of a felony," he said.

U.S. Attorney Nancy Wicks said Givens began cooperating with authorities on Jan. 13, 2012.

She said in court that she

See MILLER, A3

See LAWYER, A3

Accrediting agency head instructs S.C. State board

Split SCSU board can't elect chair

By DALE LINDEM-ALTMAN
T&D Staff Writer

South Carolina State

seek re-election as chair, although he plans to continue to serve as trustee.

He told the board

Brian Symmes
Cell: (803) 673-9437
Direct Line: (803) 734-0304