Description/Significant Features:

The house is a two-story, frame residence with a cross-hipped roofline. The front elevation has a one-story, hipped roof porch that wraps around both sides; it is supported by single Tuscan columns that rest on brick piers. The main entry door is roughly centered within the front elevation and is located in a front projecting section; a second story doorway leads to a balcony, which is located inset beneath the roof of the projecting section and is supported by a single column. North of the doorway is a three-sided, two-story bay that has a single two-over-two, double-hung, wooden sash window on each bay. There are two interior brick chimneys visible above the roof ridge.

Alterations (include date(s), if known):

Enclosure of porch on north elevation; installation of vinyl siding and removal of decorative elements along roof eaves
