WHAT THEY'RE SAYING

Governor Nikki Haley on Friday visited York to celebrate Bluestar Silicones, a global integrated silicones manufacturer, which held a grand opening for its new plant and R&D center. Video of the governor's remarks at Bluestar's grand opening celebration is available here, and video of television news coverage of the event is available here.

Here's what people are saying about Bluestar's grand opening:

"Governor Nikki Haley made it simple and clear today South Carolina is open for business..." (Trent Faris, WBTV, "Haley tours new facility in York, talks jobs," 6/15/2012)

"...company that was almost out the door was back in South Carolina..." (Don Worthington, The Rock Hill Herald, "Determination kept Bluestar in York County," 6/18/2012)

"The dealmaker proved to be Gov. Nikki Haley." (Don Worthington, The Rock Hill Herald, "Determination kept Bluestar in York County," 6/18/2012)

"...just one phone call from Governor Nikki Haley [and Bluestar's York] changed his mind." (Trent Faris, WBTV, "Haley tours new facility in York, talks jobs," 6/15/2012)

"Her approach... 'was a breath of fresh air....It was not about money but about creating an environment.'" (J. Christopher York, Bluestar Silicones USA president, in The Rock Hill Herald, "Determination kept Bluestar in York County," 6/18/2012)

"Gov. Nikki Haley, they said, made the extra effort to keep the company from moving to Charlotte." (Don Worthington, The Rock Hill Herald, "Haley visits York for Bluestar plant opening," 6/16/2012)
