Gov. Nikki Haley urged South Carolina residents Friday to prepare for historic rainfalls over the weekend that will bring extensive flooding and power outages. People who live in low-lying areas need to go ahead and leave. Shelters will open as needed. Otherwise, residents should stay at home and off roads, Haley said.

Note: While the state has not ordered evacuations, "if you have ever flooded before, go ahead and get out of the way" because there will be massive flooding, she said. If people stay and need help later, "we don't know how long it will take us to get you out of there."

The State: Record rainfall possible in the Midlands, flooding likely through Sunday, weather service warns

Greenville News: Prison work programs end year in red but provide jobs

<http://www.greenvilleonline.com/story/news/2015/10/02/prison-work-programs-end-year-red-but-provide-jobs/73197448/>

Half of the state's prison labor programs ended the fiscal year in June with a net loss, but prison officials say what's important is that the programs provide opportunities for rehabilitation, not that they make money. Some of those losses involved companies that use inmate workers and are charged for rent, utilities and security by the prison system.

Post and Courier: Volvo agreement spells out incentives and possible U.S. headquarters move

David Wren

Having landed Volvo's only U.S. automobile manufacturing plant, South Carolina officials now are hoping to lure the company's North American headquarters to Berkeley County. It's a lofty goal, seeing how the automaker's U.S. corporate offices have been in New Jersey for the better part of nearly 60 years.

The State: SC overwhelmingly backs background checks before buying guns, Winthrop Poll finds

Jamie Self

One gun-control effort could find traction in South Carolina, including from Republicans, a new poll says. Eighty percent of South Carolinians polled say they would support legislation requiring background checks be completed before a would-be gun buyer can take a firearm home, according to a new Winthrop Poll question, asked exclusively for The State.

Greenville News: Congress passes Tim Scott amendment to health care law

<http://www.greenvilleonline.com/story/news/2015/10/02/congress-passes-tim-scott-amendment-health-care-law/73225728/>

Mary Orndorff Troyan

Congress voted this week to approve legislation by Sen. Tim Scott of South Carolina that would shield mid-size businesses from higher health insurance premiums. The Protecting Affordable Coverage for Employees Act passed the House and Senate by voice vote and is expected to be signed by President Obama. It was a rare bipartisan agreement to modify the 2010 Affordable Care Act.

Daniel J. Gross

The only way for African-Americans to be treated fairly and impartially by law enforcement is to demand better background checks on officers and more input in police department polices, a national NAACP leader said in Spartanburg Friday.

Rock Hill Herald: Officials advise staying indoors during weekend rain, possible flooding

<http://www.heraldonline.com/news/local/article37348230.html>

Teddy Kulmala

Meteorologists predict a thunderstorm for the Rock Hill area sometime Saturday afternoon before 5 p.m., with showers and heavy rainfall continuing throughout the day. Wind gusts are expected and the storm could dump an additional 1 to 2 inches of rain.

National News:

Associated Press: US to review Colorado prisons for Guantanamo detainees

http://m.apnews.com/ap/db\_268748/contentdetail.htm?contentguid=MckyYiVR

Kristen Wyatt, Lolita C. Baldor

A team from the U.S. Defense Department will visit both a state and a federal prison in Colorado to assess their possible use for housing detainees from Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, senior U.S. officials said Friday. The visit comes as the Obama administration struggles to shut down the Guantanamo detention center and find a location within the U.S. to house its detainees.
