Good Morning! Looks like a great weekend on tap. Who's going to a park? What's on the agenda?

Taze N Dre Hedrick If it will stay dry I hope to get out & MTB Saturday or Sunday. I'd love to head back out to Issaqueena Trail(I know that's not a SC State Park).

Angie Gillis Never stayed at Huntington, but love MBSP. Is Huntington that good?

at 21:45:58 on 1/27/2012 UTC

Sue Ann Tarkenton Yes Huntington is that good! I have camped at MBSP too and loved it as well. We have the BEST state parks!

Larry Rogers Angie, To me, Huntington is ten times better; There is so much wildlife; One of the best bird viewing places in the state, big birds and small; they have salt water marshes, and fresh water ponds; lots of alligators to look at, and turtles.. They have several long boardwalks for you to walk out and see the wildlife;; They also have a wonderful educational center; plus great showers, and walkways to the beach;; MBSP may be good for camping, but this week the pier was shut down for repairs, and there is just nothing to do at that park, unless you go in the ocean,, way too cold for that;; plus Huntington is about 8 times larger in area..

Sue Ann Tarkenton Larry when we stayed at MBSP no one warned us about the airport right next door. We love to watch airplanes but holy cow they were so close (and loud). It was lots of fun and we enjoyed the beach. You are right about the wildlife too!
