Any issues with this?

"As state officials monitor fuel supply issues, the governor's office has been in contact with Colonial Pipeline, and we will continue to keep the public informed. What's important is that consumers continue to purchase fuel as they normally would."

I defer to Richele as she has more details, but I recommend we send something similar to what we said after the last colonial pipeline mishap a few weeks ago.

Hi there, Chaney:

Hope you are doing well.

It looks as though I'll be writing something today about the Colonial Pipeline explosion and the warning from AAA Carolinas that gas supplies and prices may likely be impacted again in South Carolina.

Don't know if you guys have plans to comment at this point, but I would ask if Gov. Haley is at least contemplating any preemptive plan to help mitigate any potential problems to S.C., motorists at this point ---- and I'd also ask if her September executive orders to address those issues are still in place or had a natural expiration date, if you will?

If you can help on this, let me know, please.

Thank you,
Roddie
