

The Morning in Nevada PAC was created in 2015 by friends of Nevada Attorney General Adam Paul Laxalt to help fund conservative causes, candidates and organizations. The Inaugural Basque Fry, its signature event, was held at Corley Ranch in Gardnerville, Nevada, on August 15, 2015 and featured a number of Republican presidential candidates including Dr. Ben Carson, businesswoman Carly Fiorina, Wisconsin Governor Scott Walker and U.S. Senator Ted Cruz.

Morning in Nevada PAC seeks to help recruit and support other conservative young men and women who wish to serve in elected office.

The inspiration in choosing the name Morning in Nevada PAC comes from conservative hero Ronald Reagan, and his hopeful vision for a Morning in America. We believe that Nevada is ready to experience our home state version of that – which we call Morning in Nevada.

Laxalt, 37, is a former U.S. Navy JAG officer who served in Iraq during the U.S.-led surge, and became Nevada's Attorney General after a tough election last year. As the youngest state Attorney General in the country, Laxalt is part of a new generation of leaders who have served our nation in Iraq or Afghanistan.

Contributions to Morning in Nevada PAC are not deductible as charitable contribution for federal income tax purposes. Contributions from foreign nationals are prohibited. Individual contributors must be U.S. citizens or lawfully admitted with permanent resident status (green card holders). Nevada law prohibits making a contribution in the name of another, including reimbursing another for making a contribution.
