Yes, they are looking forward to the Lieutenant Governor's visit tomorrow at 11:00a. Here is some additional information about the center:

- The Lowcountry Senior Center (the one you will be visiting) and Waring Senior Center (currently under construction) are owned by the City of Charleston and managed by Roper St. Francis Hospital.
- Membership rates for the center range from $70-105 annually for in-county members; some classes / programming have additional fees.
- The Lowcountry Senior Center features a walking trail, outdoor fitness stations, a fitness center, computer lab, and flexible space for classes and programming.
- I have also attached their November/December 2017 newsletter so the LG can see all of the things they offer (they've got a lot going on).

This is great. Please send me a few bullets on the center. He'll have a window from 4-6 on Thursday before needing to be in downtown Charleston

Here is the information on Wednesday's visit; they suggested 11:00a. Just to reiterate, this center is not part of the Trident AAA (it's a standalone through the hospital system in Charleston), but it's very similar to a senior center... just a good many more people... it's an impressive operation. I know he will enjoy it, and the staff will meet him for a tour and questions, etc. The center address and contact information is highlighted; more info is on their website, <http://www.lowcountryseniorcenter.com/>

Working on something for Thursday afternoon... how much time would he have / want?

Good morning, Hank

I am delighted for Lieutenant Governor Kevin Bryant to come and visit the center on Wednesday (12/6). I am copying our Executive Director, Elizabeth Bernat, on this email as I am sure she would like to be part of the visit.

Visiting around 11am will give the Lieutenant Governor an opportunity to see our center during a time of peak activity. I will assure a staff escort for you as well. I look forward to your visit and thank you for your interest and kind words regarding the senior center.

Best regards,

Let's do the one on James Island so that he can see that operation. Will you please set it up and send me the details. He just needs to be on Kiawah at 1:30. Thanks

I will look into for the other times / days. Here's a map of the two centers nearest Kiawah. Do you have a preference? The one on James Island is run through the hospital system (a neat concept). He probably would not have an opportunity to speak because they have so many classes, etc., but it is a quality tour.
