Rob,

Will Haley be at the NGA meeting this weekend or is she planning to skip it? If she's here I'd like to get some time with her for an interview.

Thanks,
Dan

Thanks much. So now all we're lacking is details about Obama meeting. Do you have any more details about what she's doing at RGA?

Rob,

The two linked reports I'm writing about are behind a password-protected firewall of the group that put them out = Federal Funds Information for States, so I can't ship you the reports themselves. This link has the summary. One report ranks South Carolina at No. 13 among all states in economic momentum. The second report ranks South Carolina among the top 10 states (it doesn't differentiate among the 10) in the fiscal health of its state government. I'm combining both findings to write a modest spot piece about how various signs point to an improving S.C. economy both private and public/state government. My question is pretty basic -- does Gov. Haley welcome this news, and does she agree that things are moving in the right direction after several really tough years?

Here's the summary URL:

Thanks.

Rob,

Aside from wanting to catch up with the governor per my email below, I'd like to talk with her for a spot article I'm writing tomorrow on the overall state of South Carolina's economy AND on the fiscal health of its state government. It's ranked No. 13 in overall economic growth and in the top 10 of all states for fiscal health, according to a report by Federal Funds Information for States, a for-profit affiliate of the National Governors Association.

Could you please give me a ring or ask the governor to call me? 202-383-0014.

Thanks.
