Integrating your Existing Systems into a Microservices Ecosystem

Wednesday, April 19th, 2017 at 2:00pm ET

As many agencies race to buildout their application backlog with their new microservices architectures, many are grappling with the decision of whether to integrate those services with their legacy systems. Whether or not to reuse a legacy system(s), at the expense of duplicating integration logic across services or rewriting the legacy system is a common dilemma.

Join us for this complimentary webinar to explore how agencies can leverage a microservices platform to make the most of their IT dollars. By building a service façade on top of existing applications, it can make those applications easily accessible with other microservices without the risk of modifying the existing systems or duplicating unnecessary integration code.

Learn how you can embrace the benefits of:

1. Embrace and extend vs. Rip and replace
2. Overcoming the hidden costs of microservices
3. Reducing risk by modernizing access to legacy systems
