Dear Ms. Forkner:

The cutting of Home Health and Hospice Medicaid benefits will significantly hinder the efforts of many providers to offer cost efficient, quality care to patients who chose to remain in their homes. The direct care and education we provide in the home can help drastically reduce costly hospital re-admissions and emergency room visits. As a Home Health Agency in the upstate, we help patients manage care related to expensive chronic diseases as well as manage care related to acute illnesses. Cuts to these benefits will set cost saving healthcare initiatives back several years.

In the home, we are frequently able to identify barriers within the residence and family that may prevent patients from returning to their optimal level of health. We can begin addressing these barriers through the use of Skilled Nurses, Social Workers, Therapist, Dietitians, Aides, and Chaplains. With advancing technology and the many services Home Health is currently able to provide, Home Health represents a significant opportunity to help the patient and family transition through the continuum of health in a manner where cost containment can be notable.

We therefore ask that you intervene on our behalf to eliminate the proposed Medicaid cuts that will directly impact the health of your constituents and their families. In return, I propose that Home Health and Hospice Leaders and organizations within our State hold an emergency session to determine what we can do together to resolve the crisis without jeopardizing the health and rights of those most vulnerable in our community.

Sincerely,

Benita Pope, Director of HomeCare and Professional Services
Bon Secours St. Francis Hospital
