Quick follow-up...

I called over to CHE to talk about getting scores for a pilot version of OYT and also a statewide version. They said they were already working with the Office of State Budget on scoring the pilot version, for which there's proviso language. Sounds like we'll get that shortly.

They've also asked a few presidents to assign designees to work with CHE on fleshing out what a statewide version of this would look like and what the impact would be on Lottery funding (or what new revenue would be required to hold the per-student/per-semester support at the current year's level). CHE is saying that it's likely a month or two before that comes together and we start to get some figures back from them.

I'll follow-up with them in a little while, but wanted to fill you in, since we talked about it this week.
