Cindi,

First, I apologize for the delayed response. Now, let me see if I can answer your questions.

Yes, citizens can currently mail their tax payment to the county office and they will forward the information to DMV. In these instances, we mail out vehicle renewal registrations and decals through our overnight process. If they pay their taxes in a county office in person, they can also take their receipt to a DMV office to get their registration renewal and decal.

What's different about the pilot project in Dorchester is that once a customer pays their taxes in the county office, Dorchester County can issue them a new registration and decal right there in that office--no visit to DMV is required. Dorchester County will also process registration renewals for customers who pay their registration fees and their property taxes together by mail.

Dorchester County is the first county to participate in the pilot project, but the entire project is a partnership between DMV and all county offices. Right now, we're working out the kinks with this project while we get ready to move the pilot forward in other counties. Our Phoenix system, which is much more technologically advanced, is allowing us to expand our services. We're working with Richland County with the hopes of going online in the Fall, but because we're tying two different systems together, it can be a slow process. So, our Fall plans are tentative.

Our ultimate goal is to better serve the customer by offering more convenient ways for them to get those services. We're trying to take our services to our customers using methods and places they already use to conduct business, rather than making them come to us. For example, we've brought our services to our customers by mail, the internet, in person and now in the county offices. It just makes sense to let them get their registration in the county since they are already there to pay their property taxes.

As to your question, about 20% of the vehicle registration renewals in SC are processed in person at a DMV office. If you have any additional questions, please let me know. Feel free to call me on my cell at 331-9664.

Ms. Parks

I'm hoping you can give me a couple of more specifics about this new program, and also make sure my understanding of the current situation is correct.

First, the current situation: I'm aware that people can mail in their tax payment to the county, which will automatically forward the registration information to the DMV, which will mail the taxpayers' renewal registration to them. I'm also aware that people can go in person to the county tax office and then take their receipt in person to the DMV. The Charleston news article seemed to imply a third option, of going in person to the tax office and then having the tax office forward the information and payment to the DMV, which would mail the registration to the taxpayer. Is that correct?

Now, the specifics of the new program:

Could you tell me when Richland County is slated to go online with this new program?

Also, could you tell me what percentage of vehicle renewals are done in person at the DMV offices statewide?

Thanks so much for your help.
