Rob,

After reviewing the info. I've gathered, some with your help, I've decided there's not a news story that's relevant to yesterday's decision about Ms. Murphy's candidacy nor the operation of Richland County's elections board.

Being late on certification is commonplace, the State Election Commission tells me. Since the governor has granted Ms. Holley an extension, the commissioner's status has not been revoked and her votes stand. Ms. Johnson's resignation did not take effect until today, so that, too, stands.

If I've missed something, please let me know.

Thanks again for your prompt replies & assistance.

A few things:

- 1) Documents you're looking for are attached.
- 2) My colleague Chaney Adams is copied on this email. Don't want you to feel like you don't know anyone on our team. Chaney is our press secretary, we work together in the governor's office, and anytime you're looking for stuff from us, you can reach out to her. We'll work together to make sure you're taken care of.
- 3) Please let us know what questions you have - any and all. We'll do our best to get you squared away.
