Well, I know I'm looking in the correct place because the Rockefeller Foundation gave a grant to McKinsey in 2011 (see attached), but its not the project you're interested in. So these must be on the 2012 reports.

Possible, but unlikely. No big deal. Probably won't show until the 2012 reports appear. Thanks.

Is there a chance that the grants were given to an organization that then hired McKinsey to do the work? I don't see McKinsey in these 990 reports. Just wondering if I am overlooking something.

The actual report's on the left ("Download the report"). See acknowledgements on page 58. I'm wondering what this thing cost. Guidestar. Thanks.
