Dear Ms. Good:

Yesterday I journeyed to Lake City, SC to look at Truluck Vineyard mentioned earlier as a farm I wanted to purchase about 15 minutes from DSM plant in Kingstree I have watched over since discovering heterotropic algae in my lab in 2000, and intensely since DSM enter the picture by purchase of Martek in 2010.

Dr. Truluck, a Clemson man and dentist was a contemporary of my Connecticut wine business but his production was well beyond his market and he quickly went belly up. Most vines are removed and the winery a mere building. Chicora Wood is an hours drive to DSM site and the beauty of it, unmatched in my eyes, though not a working rice farm as pre Civil War. Bottom line working with nature is intimacy beyond admiring it or hunting and my son and his two sons (10th generation) badly need to return to their roots here in God's low country and work hard as hell to restore this farm lest they become decadent and useless in the future.

Chicora is on a back burner now and time is not critical to buy it as in time it likely will be there, or will surely be with a first option down. Therefore, in so far as the "call" or deposit to secure the brokering deal or to benefit from my Rankine efficiency boost or future fostering of Duke efforts in the Global arena, I reduce the amount requested from 15 to 5 million to purchase an honest working farm and restore it with my son's capable direction and grand son's sweat. That's America Mam says the second son of the second son in terms of primogeniture.

In so far as Feike Sijbesma and I go "the woods are lovely dark and deep, but we have promises to keep" and they best be kept quickly or we may all be dead.

To join with Clemens may I say I am only half so now. LOL

Respectfully,
