Dear CONSTITUENT,

Thank you for your recent correspondence regarding the National Defense Authorization Act, and specifically, its "detain and imprison" provisions.

I recognize and appreciate the arguments made by those who believe that our national security efforts require this expanded authority. It is always a challenge to balance our natural rights to be free against our expectations that the government will provide for our security. Ultimately, however, I must agree with Benjamin Franklin, who in 1755 wrote, "Those who would give up essential liberty, to purchase a little temporary safety, deserve neither liberty nor safety."

I believe that we can capably defend our country without such ominous infringements upon on our rights. God bless.

My very best,

Nikki R. Haley
