

Account: South Carolina State Parks

Content type: Facebook Page - Timeline posts

Record ID: 20150602South-Carolina-State-ParksTimeline-posts52748_10153346863893166

South Carolina State Parks

at 15:48:52 on 6/02/2015 UTC · 🌐

Early risers at Myrtle Beach State Park are often treated to some fly overs by a bald eagle or two. At least one eagle is usually seen perched high in some trees trying to spot a fish or pigeon in the ocean. If you are lucky, an eagle will soar over your head while you are standing on the pier (mouth wide open in amazement!) and then quickly plunge into the ocean right beside the pier for its prey. Nature at its finest! If you can't find their favorite perching trees, just ask any of the fishing pier staff and they will be happy to point out the location.

Album

Carlos Augusto Morales Gomez Danny Woolman

at 15:53:48 on 6/02/2015 UTC

Jenny McMillan Wow

at 18:23:37 on 6/02/2015 UTC

William H Hasskamp Hope they are still there when we are in August.

at 18:43:02 on 6/02/2015 UTC

Marla Ramsey Adams Made me think if my Dad, Bill Ramsey. 🙄. He fished off that pier many a morning and the eagle flew down during his celebration of life service. Thanks for that memory today. 😊🙄❤️

at 20:20:09 on 6/02/2015 UTC

Chris Nelson Britt Nelson how did we miss this.

at 19:04:36 on 6/03/2015 UTC

Lynne Khan Wow very cool!❤️

at 22:10:16 on 6/03/2015 UTC

Steve Muenzer Angela Johnston-Muenzer

at 12:35:49 on 3/31/2017 UTC

Angela Johnston-Muenzer Can't wait!!!

at 13:23:09 on 3/31/2017 UTC