Subject: Spartanburg Refugee Resettlement Program

Oh my dear Dean, I am dismayed by so much praise, but thank you very much; however, I did only a small portion on this project, mostly editing the finished product. The committee members are private citizens, lady patriots of the calibre of Spartanburg's own Kate L.Barry. I support their desire to remain anonymous, since I have experienced the tender mercies of those who care nothing for truth or a lady's honor. Unlike Kate Barry, my committee does not risk death or prison, but Kate did not risk libel and defamation. My team discovered for themselves a 2013 publication by one of the nine State Department contractors, advising pro-refugee forces to:

" Conduct Research on Local Anti-Refugee Leaders: The national refugee agencies should partner with groups such as Center for New Community and Southern Poverty Law Center to learn more about individuals and groups leading local efforts to resist resettlement, to determine if they belong to organized anti-immigrant or anti-Muslim organizations or networks... " in a booklet prepared by the Hebrew Immigration Aid Society (HIAS), titled "Resettlement at Risk." This publication is discussed in our report.

Thank you for sharing the report. I forgot to ask everyone to do exactly this. Our public officials and candidates need to know about this program and its role in the fundamental transformation of our beloved country.

All the best,

Christina

Christina,

The University of Alabama should be proud of you. All the months you spent fighting to save your municipal swimming pool have prepared you well to become possibly the best CONSERVATIVE community activist in America.

Your almost book length essay on refugee resettlement is clear, articulate, informative and persuasive; in addition to being authoritative, well researched, objective, and extensively documented. This information needs to be in the hands of policy makers, political leaders, media producers, journalists, clergymen, and especially the general public.

I will certainly do my small part to help spread this information far and wide. This is not just a local problem in Spartanburg. As you have explained so well, this is a pilot program for what its advocates hope will be the first of millions of refugees that flood this nation exacerbating the already debilitating influx of criminal alien invaders. [I have been told I should no longer use the term illegal alien]

You have clearly sent this essay to a very distinguished and patriotic group of leaders here in the Upstate of South Carolina, most of them our mutual friends. I suggest the inclusion of another seventeen people if anyone has the ability to contact them. This needs to go to every GOP presidential contender, particularly Donald Trump who is already highlighting the negative impact of porous, uncontrolled borders.

Your leadership and extraordinary ability to research and frame important issues make me very proud that I managed your last campaign for Congress. In the event Trey Gowdy moves on in the future, I am confident your name will top a very short list of contenders to represent us in Washington.

Keep in touch, keep us informed of upcoming activities and events where these issues may be raised, and above all, never surrender!

Warmest Personal Regards,

Dean Allen
