Medicare beneficiaries may face cost increases in 2017

People with Medicare are looking at increases in their Parts A & B premiums and deductibles unless Congress acts before the end of this year. The Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) announced increases beginning Jan. 1. Absent Congressional action, about 30% of Medicare beneficiaries who are not protected by the hold harmless provision will see their monthly Part B premium rise to $137. In addition, the Part B deductible will go up to $183 and the Part A deductible to $1,316.
