Description/Significant Features:

The single-story Minimal Traditional house is composed of a central (original) rectangular block with a steep side-gabled roof. Affixed to the building's rear is a small flat-roof frame addition which likely dates to the mid-twentieth century. The building is entirely clad in vinyl siding and its roof is capped with composition shingles. A pedimented front porch, supported by replacement decorative iron columns, embraces the facade. Beneath the porch rests the building's central entrance, which appears to hold an early paneled door. Six-over-six sash flank either side of the door and may be original. A shouldered exterior-end brick chimney rises on the building's right gable end.

Alterations (include date(s), if known):

replacement vinyl siding and door/window surrounds
replacement porch columns
mid-twentieth century rear frame block addition
