Tim,

Chaney Adams in the Governor's Office has offered to help connect you with the First Gentlemen to discuss his possible participation in some capacity with When Life Sucks. I'm making this email intro because I did not get Chaney's direct number.

I think there are many avenues for involving him in our future plans. Tim I was explaining to Chaney that we need a public face to help build awareness about issues with PTSD and providing much needed help for our veterans when they return from deployment. Also, we will be having a number of public events coming up in the Spring such as the Mud Run to raise money for veterans wellness which he could assist with PR.

If I can do anything else to spur the conversation, please let me know.

"Visitors will know they have arrived in a real place when they deal with clerks who do not wear uniforms, when they find in shops well-crafted articles whose makers live nearby, when they discover on restaurant menus dishes they could not order anywhere else. They know they have arrived at a cherished place when artists choose not merely to live there but to photograph and paint it, to write and sing of it; when archaeologists and historians delve into its past; when naturalists keep track of the local flora and fauna; and when elders pass on all of this lore to the young." ~ Scott Russell Sanders
