Subject: Establishment put on notice

Katherine,

The consensus is in.

Dr. Rand Paul stood out as the clear winner at the GOP Debate on Tuesday.

In fact he was so good, the media from both the left and the right can't stop talking about his top performance.

"It was Sen. Rand Paul who made the most persuasive case that he could win over voters who aren't committed conservative Republicans." Peter Weber, The Week

"...the old Paul was back: the guy who is steadfast and combative in his libertarianism, but in a likable way. The crowd ate it up." Daniel Marans, Huffington Post

"Still, of those on the stage, Paul, Cruz and Rubio were the three most impressive candidates, with Paul out in front because he's the one talking like a grown-up..."
John Kass, Chicago Tribune

"...last night America got a chance to see why (Rand Paul is) one of the best candidates in the GOP field." D.C. McAllister, The Federalist

That's right, Rand is hitting his stride.

The race for the GOP nomination is long and grueling, and Rand has been getting punched in the gut since his announcement back in April.

But now Rand is punching back.

 On spending - Rand called out Marco Rubio for his $1 TRILLION tax credit plan and his $1 TRILLION in defense spending that he can't pay for.

 On income inequality - Rand explained why it's worse in places where Democrats are in charge, and how the Fed enables the income gap to grow.

 On regulations - He explained why he would overturn ALL of President Obama's environmental regulations that are drowning the economy.

 On national defense - He showed the American people that his GOP opponents and Hillary Clinton share the same foreign policy.

 On the economy - He explained how his 14.5% Fair and Flat Tax Plan would be the largest tax cut in history and return $2 TRILLION back to the pockets of hard-working Americans over a ten year period.

 On the facts - Rand was the only candidate on stage to call out Donald Trump and the others for not even realizing the Trans-Pacific Partnership pact doesn't include China.

We learned Tuesday night that Dr. Rand Paul is a serious contender for the GOP nomination, and the only candidate who has embraced fiscal conservatism.

With Jeb Bush all but forgotten about, the Establishment in the Republican Party is now putting all their muscle behind Marco Rubio.

But repackaging the same failed Big Government policies into a nice, new, shiny candidate won't make them work.

In fact, Marco Rubio becoming the Republican nominee only guarantees the party another loss in the general election.

Sometimes it's hard to even tell Rubio and Clinton apart:

>>> Both support amnesty

>>> Both support arming the Syrian rebels, making ISIS stronger

>>> Both supported toppling Gaddafi in Libya, leading to this mess

It's dangerous and irresponsible for the government to continue spending like a teenager with their parent's credit card.

As Rand pointed out, the United States already spends more on national defense than the next ten countries combined.

One National Review journalist even asked, "how much do we need to spend for the Republicans like Marco Rubio to be satisfied? More than all the countries combined?"

Katherine, our $18 TRILLION+ national debt is the biggest national security threat facing our country.

That's the simple truth that all Americans deserve to hear, but Dr. Rand Paul is the only candidate telling them.

It's time for a new way. It's time to defeat the Washington Machine. It's time to take our country back.

P.S. Dr. Rand Paul stood out as the clear winner at Tuesday night's GOP Presidential Debate in Milwaukee.

The media can't quit talking about it. Both the left and the right are praising him for his strong performance.

Now you and I need to capitalize on this momentum!
