Dear RGA Colleagues;

Now that legislative sessions are behind most of us, we renew our efforts to connect our states with the goal of improving operations. As Republican Governors, our bosses have a firm belief in limited but effective government. Republican governors everywhere are proving that fiscal responsibility and improved government services go hand in hand. They are showing how much government constituents won't miss, and also how competent a job the remaining, necessary government can do.

In a survey sent by Governor Daniels to each GOP Governor, our colleagues in FL indicated he has implemented tactics to improve permitting and licensing while representatives from Alaska and South Carolina (emails included above) indicated they were interested in learning about new approaches. Here's how to reach Chris:

As Governor Daniels said in his letter to GOP Governors, "Our agency heads can attend conferences and attempt to model. When we began transforming Indiana's highway department, by far the most useful step we took was to visit and host."

He added, "More effective governors are more electable governors. Pitch in to help a colleague, and let some colleagues help you, too."

I hope you will reach out to one another directly and share your best practices to improve Permitting/Licensing. Please let me know if we can help you by scheduling an introductory conference call or facilitate in anyway.

Thanks!

Debbie
