Sue Ann Tarkenton "Never underestimate even the smallest gesture you make when it comes to customer service. You can never be aware of the lasting impact it may have." This statement is so true. We had to call a Park Ranger one night after the office was closed. The sign said to call the Ranger in emergency situations only. We left our paperwork at home and didn't know which campsite to go to. We called the number and the Ranger came right over. We apologized for bothering him and he was so kind and gracious. He even checked on us then next day to see if we got our camp set up in the dark. He was very kind even when we disturbed his evening. :0)
