Post and Courier is doing a weekender on Real ID. Wanted everyone to see the quote we're going to provide them. Let us know of any concerns:

"South Carolina law, passed in 2007, prohibits our state from complying with Real ID, and the governor's office will continue to follow that law. State officials, however, will meet with the Department of Homeland Security to discuss the security of South Carolina driver's licenses and identification cards in order to make sure our citizens are not inconvenienced by any federal mandate."
