Subject: BBC WORLD SERVICE RADIO: polite request for an interview with GOVERNOR NIKKI HALEY...

Dear Ms Adams and Mr Symmes,

I am contacting you from the Newsday programme on BBC World Service radio in London.

We are heard all over the world – including on many NPR stations across the United States, and the World Service reaches 52 million listeners in English each week.

We understand that Governor Haley will be extremely busy, but are wondering whether she might have a few moments to do a short interview over the telephone at any point this evening?

It would be wonderful for our listeners to get the chance to hear Governor Haley talk about why she's called for the Confederate flag to be moved from the grounds of the State Capitol, and also her thoughts on how South Carolina has reacted to the terrible killings last week.

We could record the interview any time after 7pm tonight your time, and can guarantee that it won't take more than five minutes from start to finish.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Best wishes

Ann
