The historic core of the single-story Ranch residence stands five bays wide (the fifth bay appearing to be an enclosed carport). The building's central bay holds a replacement door, which is flanked on either side by replacement windows. A large three bay gabled porch supported by wooden columns frames the door and windows. Extending from the building's eastern elevation is a two bay frame addition, clad in asbestos shingles. An original exterior gable-end chimney is now enclosed due to the incorporation of this addition.
