Frank Wendell Why close all state parks, the state beaches were a good place to take in the sun, which is supposed to be good for you and there is plenty of room to distance from others

Derham Holland The problem is then people feel the need to use the restrooms, and the park staff feel the need to keep the riff raff at bay, but most of all when the governor mandated social distancing, people took it upon themselves to have parties in places that were still open to the point that it was not enforceable by the skeleton staff they had to enforce his suggestions, so he shut them down. This is including the flotillas that formed on our waterways the weekend before he shut the landings down. So once again we are having to pay for the stupid people.

Nancy Michael Rice Thank the Lord, SC is opening up camping and trails in its state park during May 2020. 😊
