Emerging Markets Forum

Doing Business with India: The Promise and the Perils

April 29, 2016
8:30AM-4:00PM
Rotunda

India is an emerging economic powerhouse and US-India commercial ties are of increasing importance to both countries. At a time when many emerging markets are facing economic difficulties,

India remains a bright spot on the firmament - holding considerable promise, but also complex and difficult to navigate. For these reasons, this year's Emerging Markets Forum will focus on doing business with India. Hosted by the Smith School's Center for International Business Education and Research, this year's conference will cover a wide range of topics. Topics include: key trends and forces impacting the fortunes of Indian industry, effective strategies for negotiating the diverse Indian market, and government policies and the reform agenda. Distinguished speakers include: H.E. Arun K. Singh, India's Ambassador to the U.S.; Jagdish Bhagwati, University Professor of Economics, Columbia University; Mukesh Aghi, PhD, President, U.S.-India Business Council.

2016 International Policy Forum

Global Engagement for Economic Growth

May 24, 2016
8:30AM-10:30AM
Rotunda

As the capital of the world's most economically powerful nation, Washington, DC is positioned as a top global city and represents an effective base for foreign firms and organizations looking to boost their overall U.S. presence. But at the same time, as the federal government is becoming less reliable as an anchor for Greater Washington's current and future prosperity, it is critical for U.S. companies to evolve and diversify operations and create quality jobs through exports.

Washington, DC is uniquely positioned to grow through exports, given its global connectivity and growing international diversity. Join us for discussion and insights on:

- The District of Columbia's 2016 economic forecast on competitive positioning in a growing global economy.
- Investment opportunities for global engagement to spur local economic growth.

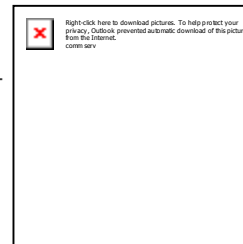

- Federal financing and assistance for import and export services to expand and compete in the global marketplace.
