Quote from Haley press secretary Chaney Adams, "When local requests for assistance come in, as the state prepares for a storm, we listen to the needs of local officials. In the aftermath of a storm, state officials always consider what worked and what didn't, and that informs what can be handled better during the next state emergency."

Chaney,

I'm likely to write something today since the cost estimates are in about the school bus operation for evacuations out of the North Charleston Coliseum. Looks like it cost about $1 million. Let me know if your office wants to comment.

Thanks!
