

From: Dustin Waters <dustin@charlestoncitypaper.com>
To: Adams, ChaneyChaneyAdams@gov.sc.gov
Date: 10/11/2016 11:04:32 AM
Subject: Media Inquiry

Good morning,

This is Dustin Waters, working with the Washington Post/Charleston City Paper in Charleston, SC. In following up on things after the passage of Hurricane Matthew, I was hoping to get a better understanding of Gov. Haley's statements regarding evacuations not being separated into voluntary and mandatory.

Is there a specific reason why South Carolina does not designate evacuations as either voluntary and mandatory?

Was there a time when South Carolina did designate evacuations as voluntary/mandatory and, if so, what led to the state dropping this designation?

I appreciate any information you can provide.

All the best,

Dustin

--

Dustin Waters
Charleston City Paper
Staff Writer

Cell: 478-812-0807