Rob – I do understand and I am sorry for the late notice. A victim of this horrible tragedy will be speaking with us in the morning and we feel we want to dedicate as much time as possible to hearing about these men and women who lost their lives from those that knew them best. I am sure you can understand our hope to celebrate the lives lost.

John

Governor Haley rearranged her schedule to stay in Charleston overnight to accommodate these interview requests. What do y'all want us to tell her for context on this decision?

And please tell your colleagues that, given what's happened here, This Week will be a heavy, heavy lift.

Chaney – we are going to stand down on our interview for tomorrow morning. Appreciate you all working with us. I know my colleagues at This Week hope the Governor can join them Sunday morning.
