On behalf of the Department of General Engineering and the College of Engineering and Science at Clemson University, I want to thank you for supporting Dr. Murray Brockman, President of the Governor's School of Science and Mathematics, as a member of the Advisory Board to the Freshman Engineering program of Clemson University. We exist to develop students who will one day engineer great societies and the contribution of the Board to our program is invaluable in helping us teach them how to think like an engineer. Murray's active participation in the General Engineering Advisory Board has been vital to our department and college, and the progress we are making in developing innovative approaches to improve outcomes for our students is in large part due to their efforts. I can positively state that his contribution is making a difference in the lives of these new engineering students as they embark on a lifetime journey of giving back to the people of our great state and a world in dire need of technological advances to solve the grand challenges we face today.

With Sincere Gratitude,

R. J. Watkins, PhD, P.E.
