

OPERATION REDEMPTION

"Sharing our stories, so yours will have a happy ending."

OUR MISSION

Operation Redemption is an initiative striving to make communities safer by providing the opportunity for inmates to share their stories, with the goal of preventing future generations from making the same mistakes. Presently, there is no outlet for inmates to give back to the communities they have harmed. We believe there is a resource of people currently incarcerated who have the desire to share their story with the intent to help young people stay on the right path.

Our mission is to take these powerful testimonials and get them into the hands of schools, coaches, youth centers, and churches. Our firm belief is this project will make communities safer, honor the victims of crimes, and give inmates an opportunity to earn redemption by making amends for their past mistakes. This kind of service will create a sense of self-worth within the inmates that will improve morale, and encourage the kind of correction we should expect from our prison systems.

ABOUT US

We are an inmate led group who are hoping to make amends for our mistakes and pay respect to those we hurt by giving back to future generations. We understand the severity of the mistakes we made, and hope by telling our stories, we can keep more people from following in our footsteps. We are determined to not let our past and current location keep us from making a positive impact on the world.

WHY WE DO IT:

- To prevent crime
- To let people learn from our mistakes
- To provide inmates a means for expression
- To honor the victims of our crimes
- To encourage correction to the incarcerated

HOW WE HOPE DO IT:

Phase 1: Letters - sending letters to places where they can be read by young people.

Phase 2: Video - sharing video testimonials online and showing them to schools, churches, and youth centers.

Speaking - Having inmates attend a public event to share their stories in person.
