I don't think it's improper to attend. Absent a bribe I don't think Section 8-13-705 prohibits it. He will need to disclose if he does attend.

Subject: Ethics question

Cathy,

The Director at the Office on Aging has been invited to a fundraiser for one of our providers (an entity that we contract with and give money to provide various services to seniors). The entity that has invited our Director is a food vendor who contracts with our providers. We do not directly contract with this food vendor, but we are connected.

The Director would not be invited to this event, but for his position.

Certainly, the Director would need to include this on his Statement of Economic Interest, but is it all together improper to attend?

Please advise.

As always, thank you.
