Solitary Confinement and Mental Illness Among Prison Populations

Amy E. Bennett

Solitary confinement is the wrong way to deal with the mentally ill. So why has it become the default solution to disruptive behaviors in prisons and elsewhere?

Seeking Guardianship Appointment to Ensure Payment of Nursing Home Charges

Roslyn Myers, J.D.

Petitioning for guardianship in order to make sure the bills get paid on time is an appropriate act for family members or trusted advisors. But increasingly, nursing homes are seeking to be appointed guardians—raising the potential for conflicts of interest.

Can Elderly Individuals With Dementia Consent to Sexual Contact?

Seeking to avoid liability, many nursing homes have begun to implement policies that discourage sexual contact—and many residents resist these restrictions. Finding the right balance can be difficult, as a recent case illustrates.

Worth Reading and Watching

Robert A. Mead, J.D., M.L.S.

A report issued in advance of a White House conference on elder mistreatment highlights the need for prioritizing the fight against financial abuse.

Report on Victimization of the Elderly and Disabled is published six times a year in print and online. Current and back issues are always available to subscribers.
