scstateparks Just a little bobcat action at Lee State Park! Bobcats are nocturnal animals which is why this video by @acorn365 captures some cool activity. From deer, to birds and snakes, what wildlife do you enjoy witnessing while at South Carolina State Parks? Comment below 🐾

boogiemama99 This looks more like a cougar than a bobcat! 😊 Bobcats don't have such long tails, do they?
at 14:20:48 on 11/13/2019 UTC

scstateparks @boogiemama99 Yes it is a bobcat. Their tails average anywhere from 6 to 7 inches.

Cougars are much larger in size.

dspiv13 Rare bobtailed panther said to have gone extinct in the Carolinas but as we see here they are making a comeback

scstateparks @rubyandmarie okay no snakes! Haha. What is your favorite animal to see while at any of our state parks?

jess_fitsc @industriouspimp told you bobcats are BIG

sean_oo7 I don't think that's a bobcat. Bobcats don't have long tails. Looks more like a panther or mountain lion. 🐾
at 16:52:05 on 11/13/2019 UTC

chrismelaniekirby @buteoaddict bobcat? Doesn't look like one.

1.reluctant.yogi We visited Lee on Monday while on our way back from camping at Myrtle Beach State Park. What a pretty park!

live4thepast I have a regular house cat that shows up on my game cam. I have seen it in person. On the cam it looks to be triple the size of what it actually is so game cams can be deceiving for those of you that think it's a panther or cougar. Just look at the ears, face, and shoulders and you can tell it's not a panther alisonfmartin I have enjoyed seeing an armadillo at both Poinsett and Barnwell State Parks. Both times they seemed almost indifferent to being fairly close to people.
