I thought that this may only be for the Inventory Unit. Beth confirmed it. For your information; I will let Beverly know.

Marcia,

There is something that Beverly is missing. Inventory maintenance was designed for the Inventory unit to set the order points for offices and to maintain vendor orders that the FOs will not be dealing with.

I know, you are sick of me. However, please help me answer this. Do field office employees need access to this menu item? If so and Cynthia is a super user, why have we not had complaints from other offices?

Is there something I am missing here? What is the big deal about letting the assistant manager/lead user have access to inventory maintenance(item 600)? Would it be possible - when I return to Columbia - to meet with you, Marcia and Philip to review the different access levels, what each level includes, and the risks/benefits of enabling employees to access needed screens? I do not understand the difference levels of inventory control, but....this is a nuisance to be dealing with right now. Beverly

Beverly,

I've checked the role for Brown_CynthiaO and she is in the system as a front counter super user. She has access to a wide number of inventory functions, but not to inventory maintenance. She can receive inventory, transfer inventory, print bills of lading, but she should not have access to inventory maintenance (item 600).

Please check this again and make sure that Cynthia Brown also has access to the inventory screens. Thank you.

Cynthia stated that she does not have inventory capability.
She does have access to "Edit Title" and Rebuild Purge Title"

Ms Brown is listed as a super user so she should be able to handle all lead user responsibilities.

Courtney Bucknam was the lead user at Dutch Plaza and transfered to Batesburg. Request that Cynthia Brown have capabilities to perform inventory tasks.
