Subject: I have rights too

I am feeling a pain I've never felt before. I feel betrayed by state and country. I was born in and raised in south carolina. I love both my country and state. But I feel disrespected and disappointed. I feel history has been told one sided for too long. That confederate flag never stood for slavery, racism, or hate. It embodies Christianity, Celtic heritage and, rise from tyranny. You should come down to Greenville and check out the Confederate museum, if it hasn't been ransacked or destroyed. You could learn something about my heritage that has been tarnished by lies. Yes the "kkk" picked it up but, so did many of fellow heritage members. Do you call all blacks negros because kids sag? Of course not. The south raised up from tyranny just like Washington did to Great Brittan. It hurts to know that all people have to do is throw a fit to get what they want or get paid. Let us hope that the American Indians don't do the same or we may end up as a flag less country. Seeing how Americans did try to kill them all off for land. Thanks for your time.

Sincerely,
A concerned south carolinian
